PROPERTY TYCOON SRETTHA THAVISIN IS THAILAND'S NEW PRIME MINISTER

The 60-year-old's victory paves the way for a new coalition government led by the populist Pheu Thai Party, ending months of uncertainty

THAKSIN RETURNS FROM EXILE, SENT TO JAIL

Meanwhile, former Thai PM and the Pheu Thai Party's figurehead Thaksin Shinawatra returned after years in exile and was taken to jail to serve eight years on old graft charges. However, he may be released sooner now that his party is back in power. Srettha was elected in a joint sitting of the House and Senate on Tuesday | P12

SINGLE-LARGEST PARTY NOW SITS IN OPPN

- Almost all the votes against Srettha came from the Move Forward Party, which won most votes in the May 14 general election but could not get its leader, Pita Limjaroenrat, approved. The party is now sitting in opposition
- The Pheu Thai Party was subsequently asked to attempt to form a government, and it has cobbled together an 11-party coalition with 314 MPs

B'luru student suffers burns after live wire falls on her

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

A 21-year-old Christ University girl student, pursuing her undergraduate degree in a triple major programme, suffered 35% burns after a live electric wire fell on her on Tuesday around 1.45 pm. The incident occurred at Venkateshwara Layout which is around 250 metres from Christ University.

The student, Priya Garg, is from New Delhi. She is a first-year student of Bachelor of Arts in Psychology, Sociology and English. She is staying at a paying guest accommodation at Venkateshwara Layout and she was reportedly walking back to the PG with her friends during the lunch break when the electric wire fell on her. The electric pole also fell on a scooter parked on the roadside.

The incident occurred when a water tanker that was passing by pulled an optical fibre cable dangling from the electric pole. The tanker driver, unaware that the wire had got entangled, continued driving, pulling the pole down.

A snapped electric wire came in contact with Garg, injuring her. Garg was rushed to a private hospital nearby and was later shifted to St John's Hospital, Koramangala around 4.30 pm for further treatment.

The initial assessment at the emergency ward showed that she had suffered 35% burns, more superficial than deep burns, said Dr Arvind Kasthuri, Chief of Medical Services at St John's. He said the student has no other comorbidities and her blood pressure and pulse rate were normal. She is kept under observation in the ICU and will be closely monitored for the next 48 hours. P3

Fourteen-day Moon mission

The lander and rover have a mission life of one lunar day, which is about 14 Earth days. Temperatures dip to as much as -180°C during lunar nights. However, there is an outside possibility of the lander and the rover coming back to life for another lunar day, claim scientists

Quick-fire experiments

"After powered descent on to the landing site, there will be deployment of ramp and rover coming out. After this all the experiments will take place one after the other — all of which have to be completed in just one day on the Moon, which is 14 (Earth) days," ISRO chief Somanath said

Powered braking of Vikram lander will begin at 5.45 pm with retro firing of four thruster engines to reduce speed. Scientists call it 17 minutes of terror as the whole process will be automated. Complete instructions will be fed to Vikram by 3.45 pm. The challenge is to reduce Vikram's horizontal velocity from 1.68 km/sec at a height of 30 km to almost zero for a soft landing
At an altitude of 6.8 km, two engines will shut down. The other two will give reverse thrust to further slow down Vikram as it descends
Landing scheduled at 6.04 pm. If all goes well, after Vikram settles on the lunar surface, it will release a rover on board to take pictures of the surface and conduct experiments with two onboard instruments
At an altitude of 150-100 metres, Vikram's sensors will scan the surface to check for obstacles before final descent
If the sensors spot a hill or a boulder at the landing spot it can move laterally up to 150 m to a better landing spot

Prayers from Earth for safe Moon landing

PURAN CHOUDHARY @ Bengaluru

AS the 12-hour countdown for Chandrayaan 3 begins, several cultural committees and individuals in Karnataka and other states organised pujas and prayers for the safe landing of the lander module, Vikram, on the south pole of the lunar surface. The touchdown is expected at 6.04 pm, according to the Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO).

A ceremony was held at the Shree Dodda Ganapathi temple in Basavanagudi, Bengaluru, by members of the Chamarajpet Janapara Vedike. The idol was offered phala (various kinds of fruits), panchamrita, abhisheka (holy bath) and kadubu — considered the deity's favourite sweet. The Indian flag along with Bharat Mata pictures and Chandrayaan-3 Mission posters had been placed all around the idol. P5

New oversight body coming for ED and CBI

SHAHID FARIDI @ New Delhi

THE Centre is considering creating a new post of Chief Investigation Officer of India (CIO) on the lines of Chief of Defence Staff and the National Security Advisor. As per discussions at the highest level, the chiefs of the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) and the Enforcement Directorate (ED) will report to the CIO, just like the three services report to the CDS and the two intelligence agencies to the NSA.

Sources said the government feels that there is a lot of overlap in the areas of investigation of the ED and the CBI. The ED focuses mainly on financial frauds, including cases related to money laundering and FEMA violations, but the CBI also looks into cases of corruption and other economic offences. A CIO heading the two agencies would bring better synergy between them, sources said.

According to sources, the new post will be in the rank of Secretary to the Government of India. They said the outgoing ED chief, Sanjay Mishra, could be appointed as the first CIO.

Mishra was recently allowed by the Supreme Court to continue as ED chief till September 15. The SC had termed as illegal the two extensions of one year each given to him by the Union government after his retirement. It, however, allowed him to continue till September 15 in "larger public and national interest" as the central government requested his continuance due to the ongoing review of Financial Action Task Force in which some neighbouring countries wanted India to be put in the "grey list". The apex court gave its ruling while hearing a petition against the Centre's move to give a third one-year extension to the ED chief.

FRESH INNINGS

Outgoing ED chief Sanjay Mishra, who will demit office on September 15 after the SC cut short his tenure, is tipped to be the first CIO

Sources said the post of CIO may be created before Mishra demits office on September 15. They said that the ED will continue to function under the Department of Revenue of the Union Ministry of Finance and the CBI under the Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievances and Pensions. The operational supervision of the two agencies would, however, be transferred to the CIO, who, in turn, is likely to report to the Prime Minister's Office.

SC sets aside HC order on Lakshadweep MP Faizal

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

LAKSHADWEEP MP Mohammed Faizal on Tuesday suffered a huge setback as the Supreme Court set aside an order of the Kerala High Court suspending his conviction in an attempt-to-murder case and asked it to decide on his case afresh within six weeks.

The court said the Kerala HC had failed to consider the true position of law with respect to the manner in which application for stay of conviction must be considered.

A trial court had sentenced him to 10 years in jail, which led to his disqualification from the Lok Sabha. But the HC's stay on his conviction had restored his MP status. The SC said his continuing as MP will not be affected till the HC takes a fresh call.

In its previous order, the HC had cited the prospect of incurring enormous expenses to conduct fresh elections as a ground to stay his conviction. But a bench of justices B V Nagarathna and Ujjal Bhuyan faulted the HC's decision making process. "HC has considered one aspect of the matter, namely he being MP, as any order would result in fresh elections and entail enormous expenses. The said aspect need not have been the only one to be considered by the HC," the bench said.

PKs protest for salaries, covered in human faeces

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

TWO pourakarmikas poured human faeces on themselves as a mark of protest as they were allegedly not paid salaries for 15 months. The incident took place in front of Kallahalli Gram Panchayat office in Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar's hometown Kanakapura, in Ramanagara district, on Tuesday morning.

Rangaiah and Suresh, who work as pourakarmikas on contract basis, resorted to pouring human faeces on themselves and sat on dharna in front of the GP office. They alleged that their salaries were not cleared for 15 months, and officials were not responding to their repeated requests.

Soon after the incident, Srinivas, panchayat development officer of Kallahalli GP, issued cheques. The incident shocked residents of Kallahalli and they criticised the administration for holding up salaries of pourakarmikas, and allowing the matter to escalate.

Kumaraswamy, state adviser to Jaya Karnataka Janapara Vedike and a resident of Kanakapura, said a protest will be held on Wednesday, demanding the suspension of officials responsible for the incident. "We will appeal to the Zilla Panchayat CEO to suspend the officers and ensure such incidents don't repeat," he added.

Wildlife board nod for elevated corridor through Bannerghatta

BOSKY KHANNA @ Bengaluru

THE State Board for Wildlife (SBW) on Tuesday approved a proposal from the Public Works Department (PWD) to construct a 6.63 km elevated corridor passing through eco-sensitive zone (ESZ) and Bannerghatta National Park (BNP) in Anekal range. The SBW meeting was chaired by Chief Minister Siddaramaiah.

The elevated corridor is part of the 280-km Satellite Town Ring Road (STRR), being constructed around Bengaluru to reduce traffic and restrict the movement of heavy vehicles in the state capital.

A proposal was made in 2018-19 to cut through BNP, but was put on hold with rising opposition from conservationists, activists and serving and retired forest officials. After going back to the drawing board, PWD chalked out five proposals and sent them to the forest department for approval in 2023. Of all of them, the one with the elevated corridor was chosen for approval. Pillars will be erected on the existing road so that no trees are cut and there is minimal damage to BNP, the proposal states.

It was tabled at the 17th wildlife board meeting on Tuesday and was cleared within a few minutes. At the 10-minute meeting, while many other proposals including discussion on Hesaraghatta grassland was deferred, the CM cleared the proposal for developing STRR Phase-2 (NH948A) from Ramanagara to Peddamadhagondapalli, a 57.8 km stretch in Ramanagara and Bengaluru Urban, passing through survey numbers 91 and 100 inside BNP.

"PWD had chalked out five proposals, including the construction of the 6.63 kms elevated corridor from Marsarahalli village to Periyamagondahalli and sent them to the forest department and Board members. The construction of the elevated corridor will also include putting up deck gates, CCTV, barricades and boards," a board member said.

The proposal was cleared, citing elevated corridors in Pench tiger reserve, the member added. CONTINUED ON: P5

R Praggnanandhaa holds Magnus Carlsen in first game in the World Cup final

Pragg checks Carlsen in first game of final

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Chennai

BOTH R Praggnanandhaa and Magnus Carlsen tried to find openings but positions did not permit them to get a positive outcome. So it was no surprise that both decided to shake hands and call it a draw after just 35 moves in the first match of the World Cup final in Baku on Tuesday.

The 18-year-old Indian, playing with white pieces, had the natural advantage but after surviving a gruelling tie-break in the semifinal against Fabiano Caruana, will be happy with the rest before coming back fresh on Wednesday. "It will be a fight," he told FIDE when asked to speak on what lies ahead. "He will definitely push very hard. I will try to rest and come fresh, think that's the best I can do."

Both players had equal pieces on the board (three pawns, horse and a rook) and it was a surprise to see Carlsen, who had a substantial advantage on time (34 minutes to Praggnandhaa's 10), accepting to not even put his better endgame skills to use. However, he kind of explained his decision. "Normally, I would just probably have a bit of an advantage having a rest day while he had to a play a tough tiebreak," he told FIDE. "But I have been in a pretty rough shape the last couple of days. I got some food poisoning after that game against (Nijat) Abasov. I haven't been able to to eat for the last two days. This also meant that I was really calm because I had no energy to be nervous."

The World No 1, who bids to win a first World Cup, has the advantage with white on Wednesday but Pragg, who has already qualified for next year's Candidates, has shown that he can dig deep, if needed. P17

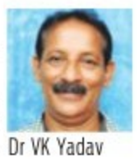
First-ever published research study in Tulu to be out soon

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Mangaluru

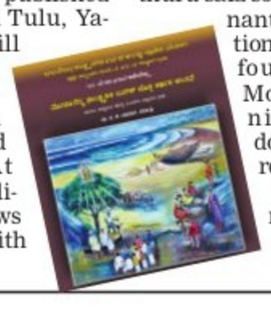
A retired professor of English has become the first person to publish a research study in Tulu. Dr VK Yadav from Sasihitlu in Mangaluru has completed his PhD on 'Mogaveerena Samskruithika Badk Bokka Arthika Chinthane' (The Cultural and Economic thoughts of Mogaveera Community) from Dravidian University, Kuppam, Andhra Pradesh. His guide is the university's head of Department of Tulu Studies Dr GS Shivakumar.



Dr VK Yadav

The thesis, brought out in a book form, will be unveiled by Dr M Mohan Alva, founder of Alva's Education Foundation on August 27.

Two years ago, Saigeetha had done her PhD in Tulu, but it was not published. Stating that his is the first published PhD thesis in Tulu, Yadav said it will help those who do research in Tulu language and literature. At present, only Dravidian University allows PhD in Tulu along with other Dravidian languages.



Author Chandrahas Kanathuru said some distinct consonants and pronunciation of Tulu language found only among Mogaveera community has also been documented in the research study.

Benett G Ammanna, a former member of the Tulu Academy, termed the published Tulu thesis as a significant development in the history of Tulu language and literature, especially in the light of the language not getting constitutional recognition citing lack of studies and literature in the language.

Prior to book release, a Tulu Poets Meet will be held at the venue in which 12 promising poets will participate.

Modest revision in guidance values on cards

New values sent to panel for assessment; govt attempts to correct anomalies

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka government, which is due to revise guidance values across the state from October 1, will not raise all property values uniformly, Revenue Minister Krishna Byre Gowda said. In extremely rare cases, there will be a downward revision of guidance value, he said.

The revision will be done bearing in mind the anomalies between guidance value and market rate of properties. The last guidance value revision (5% to 25% depending on property value) was done in 2018, and came into effect from January 1, 2019. Due to the pandemic, there has been no revision for the past five years.

Gowda told TNIE, "The upward revision will be very, very modest. It will vary from case to case, depending on market rates. Though a huge difference has been created over the years due to unscientific revisions, we don't plan to bridge the gap between guidance and market rates. It cannot and should not be corrected in one revision. We will do a very modest revision."

CLEAR ANOMALY

Data of two areas under Basavanagudi sub-registrar office in Bengaluru

Srinagar Main Road: Guidance value per sqm is ₹54,000, while its market value is ₹1,28,657

DVG Road: Per sqm guidance value is ₹1,04,000, market value is ₹1,58,909

"In very rare cases where guidance value is higher than market rate, we have advised officers to revise the value downwards," he added.

Guidance value refers to the minimum value at which a property can be registered. It holds much significance since the stamp duty paid to the state, ranges between 2 per cent and 5.6 per cent, depending on the value of the property. There is also a registration fee of 1 per cent, uniformly applicable on all properties.

Low guidance values cause injustice to property sellers, the minister said. "In land acquisition, property owners suffer injustice due to low guidance value, because this value is the basis for compensation calculation," he reiterated. Black money transactions occur because of low guidance value, as registration of properties is according to guidance value and the differential amount is transacted in cash, he added.

Preliminary procedures in connection with the revision have been completed, and the new values are being sent to the Scrutiny Committee for assessment, said a source in the revenue department. Real estate values have soared in most areas in the past few years. "The state government is suffering huge loss by earning low stamp duty revenue due to low guidance value. The income tax department too is losing out heavily in TDS," another source said. Property guidance value has not kept pace with inflation, he added.

Talk of a uniform 15 per cent increase is not practical either, an official said. "Real estate has boomed over the past five years. Assuming a 15 per cent annual increase, the present revision should be over 75 per cent," an official felt.

40 school vans found breaking rules impounded

> During the raids, we found several vehicles not having permits, and had white board registration, which is against the law.
>
> Shobha, Joint Commissioner of Transport (Bengaluru Urban)

EXPRESS ILLUSTRATION

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

IN a surprise raid by officials of the Transport Department across Bengaluru on Tuesday, 40 school vans, some of them attached to reputed private schools, were found operating without valid permits and fitness certificates and were accordingly impounded. These vans were found operating on a white board registration and a few were even overloading children, and not following any safety protocol. Officials led by Joint Commissioner of Transport (Bengaluru Urban) Shobha carried out the raids.

Addressing the media after the raid, Shobha said, "The raids are a part of a routine exercise to check the vehicles ferrying children to schools. During the raids, we found several vehicles not having permits, and had white board registration, which is against the law. Some of them have not even paid taxes and their fitness certificates are not renewed."

She said that parents, before booking a school van for their children, should have the responsibility to check if the vehicle has all the valid and necessary documents and if it is adhering to required safety protocols. Shobha also urged vehicle owners to operate only after obtaining the valid documents and to follow safety norms. She warned that the drive will continue.

A transport official said that school vans should have a contract carriage permit, and should not retrofit any extra seats to accommodate more children. They must have grills on windows so that children do not put their hands outside and have provisions to keep school bags below the seats. These rules are flouted, the official said, adding that using auto rickshaws (that have a yellow-coloured canvas hood) to ferry children is illegal as the Karnataka Motor Vehicles Rules mandate that only a hard-top vehicle should be used as school vans.

Forty such vehicles that were found flouting rules in the city were impounded by the transport department on Tuesday, the official said.

PALIKE FIRE

Chief engineer shifted to pvt hosp for further treatment

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

BBMP Chief Engineer Shivakumar (45), who suffered burns in the fire that engulfed the quality control room (QCR) in the Palike head office recently, has been shifted to a private hospital for further treatment.

Dr Ramesh Krishna K, dean-cum-director, Bangalore Medical College and Research Institute (BMCRI), said that Shivakumar's condition continues to be critical as he is suffering from acute respiratory distress syndrome (ARDS) due to the chemical inhalation from the incident. His bronchoscopy report shows extensive lung injury, and he was accordingly recommended Extracorporeal Membrane Oxygenation (ECMO) support. Since Victoria Hospital lacks an ECMO facility, he was shifted to a private hospital in Sheshadripuram late on Monday night. He continues to be admitted in the ICU and the line of treatment is being followed, sources said.

ECMO support is provided to a person when his/her organs become too weak. The machine is similar to a heart-lung bypass machine used in an open-heart surgery, which pumps and oxygenates a patient's blood outside the body, allowing the heart and lungs to rest.

Despite doctors' efforts, Shivakumar's condition has shown little change over the past few days. Another patient, Jyothi (26), an operator, is also suffering from mild ARDS and continues to be critical. Along with Jyothi, three others are also being monitored in the ICU.

However, Dr Ramesh said that four patients, Santhosh Kumar (38), Shridhar (37), Siraj (29) and Manoj (23) are recovering well.

IIM CONFERENCE

'India's skilled labour helping it become superpower'

ENS @ Bengaluru

"INDIA is strongly moving from unskilled or semi-skilled labour to skilled labour, improving its share of working population, and strongly contributing to making the country an economic superpower," said Dr Arvind Virmani, NITI Aayog member in Bengaluru, on Tuesday.

Virmani was speaking at the 18th International Conference on Public Policy & Management at the Indian Institute of Management (IIM) Bangalore, where he touched upon various points such as external threats and opportunities, domestic weaknesses and strengths of the country.

Focusing on the key drivers, Virmani said, "Supply chain diversification, globalisation of social and government services, the democratisation of information and knowledge economy, will be crucial for India."

He added that we need to promote a digital and hybrid economy, as well as a green economy that will aid India to realise its development goals by 2050. Female labour force participation, working from home, and safe transport opportunities are boosting India's economic growth.

BBMP READIES PLAN TO CLEAR ILLEGAL BUILDINGS

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE BBMP is working on an action plan to clear unauthorised buildings, following the Karnataka High Court issuing a notice in this regard.

Chief Commissioner Tushar Girinath told reporters, "Once an action plan is ready, it will be submitted to the High Court and steps will be taken accordingly." Asked how many unauthorised constructions had been identified by the BBMP, the commissioner said there was no clarity so far on how many such constructions had come up in BBMP limits.

Girinath also said he had given standing instructions to all zonal commissioners to clear illegal banners. Following directions from the government to remove banners and impose a penalty of Rs 50,000, East Zone officials filed a case against the KPCC office and collected the amount.

The commissioner stated that by Tuesday, the department would give a report on how many illegal banners and flexes had been cleared and how many cases had been filed.

On tackling drinking water needs in case of an emergency, Girinath said grants had been given to supply drinking water to 110 villages under BBMP limits, which are facing a shortage of drinking water. Grants have also been sanctioned in the outer areas of the corporation, like Mahadevapura zone, he said.

"Grants up to Rs 10 crore have been given to the outer zones to meet drinking water needs. Water supply through tankers, and repair and service of borewells will be taken up, and the amount spent according to the discretion of the zonal commissioner," stated Girinath.

KSRTC bags Greentech HR Award

Karnataka State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) has bagged the Greentech HR Award 2023 for its Innovative Transformative HR Projects undertaken for employee welfare. This award is constituted by the Greentech Foundation. In the award distribution held on Monday at Delhi airport, Jagadish Mukhi, former governor of Assam, and Kamaleshwar Sharan, Chairman and CEO, Greentech Foundation, presented the award to HD Gowramba, Chief Labour Welfare Officer, and H Gururaj, Deputy Chief Systems Manager on behalf of KSRTC.

Palike gets free hand to act against illegal banners

MOHAMMED YACOOB @ Bengaluru

WITH the BBMP registering a case against the Karnataka Pradesh Congress Committee (KPCC) Backward Class development cell for putting up illegal banners and imposing a penalty of Rs 50,000, the government is setting a precedent that all are equal before the law. It has also given a free hand to the BBMP.

Muzrai Minister R Ramalinga Reddy said, "Rules on illegal flexes and banners must be followed, and unlike earlier BJP governments, the present government is serious about the High Court direction and BBMP Act. The Palike is free to fine people and organisations for such a violation. BBMP should also muster the courage to pull down a flex with PM Modi's image, which was put up on Race Course Road by the BJP. They should file a case and impose a penalty."

KPCC General Secretary Kavitha Reddy said the Congress, when in power in 2018, had launched the 'Flex-free, Poster-free and Plastic-free Bengaluru City' campaign. The BBMP has issued a paper notification in this regard, asking people to complain to the respective control rooms to act against illegal flexes and banners, and promised that the Palike will act as per law.

"The BBMP Commissioner must muster courage and crack the whip against BJP's illegal posters and banners. Deputy CM DK Shivakumar, who also happens to be the KPCC chief, paid the penalty and this is an example to show that we follow rules," said Reddy.

BJP leaders, however, mocked the move and called it a 'political stunt'.

BJP Bengaluru South president NR Ramesh flayed the move and said as per rules, the fine can be enhanced only up to Rs 10,000 max. It appears the Congress is doing this to benefit advertising firms.

"Advertising firms associated with the Congress will gain as people who want to advertise will go for billboards and chosen places by BBMP. These firms, using the proximity to the party, will bag tenders. This is the truth. Rest all is a a big drama," said Ramesh.

23rd August : Recent freak weather has strengthened fears that global warming caused by greenhouse gasses is causing severe problems. Not many people know the extra reason, though. Astronomers believe that it's all to do with solar cycles, and strange, half-understood cool areas on the Sun's surface known as Sun spots. I'll keep you up-to-date as more information becomes available.

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
When we consider what you are truly capable of and what really suits you, we must say that some of your energy and activities may have been misdirected. If past attitudes no longer seem to serve you as well as they should, you must rethink certain fundamental goals.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
If financial affairs are still of concern, do put your own point of view across with energy and vigour, but please don't be hurt or upset if others don't share your opinions. It's right and proper that they should adopt an alternative point of view.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Thanks to Mercury's continuing supportive presence, news from abroad or involving long-term goals, should at last be to your liking. As far as personal problems are concerned, seek help from friends who have been in the same situation as you in the past.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Being a sensitive and emotional person, you sometimes feel as if life is slipping out of your control. Yet, if you make the most of your many skills and talents, there is no reason at all why you should imagine this to be the case. By next week your lost confidence will be restored.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
Pressure for change at home may have abated, and you may feel that now is not the time to risk an open disagreement. Instead, you should take the initiative and see to it that everybody approves your positive aspirations. That's the best way to share in partners' good fortune.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
Although events are generally moving your way, the fact that you seem to have so many routine chores heaping up is purely due to your own failure to keep ahead in the past. Analysing the problems may be a way of avoiding taking firm practical action.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
The Moon, in association with other planets, reminds you that social and partnership issues still have to be dealt with in spite of recent developments. Even though this might be the last thing on your mind at present, you really do have to redouble your efforts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Financially you have been reaping the full benefit of Jupiter's helpful patterns, marginal though this may be, and you must still be on the crest of a wave. This is an ideal note on which to enter the next phase of your existence, especially if you're hatching a creative scheme.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
Financial negotiations may have gone well, but it now looks as if final decisions may be altered or adjusted next week, through no fault of your own. As a general rule you should settle bills when you are prosperous rather than waiting until your resources are drained.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Mars is still playing a powerful role in your personal relationships, so partners will be in a demanding mood, and unexpected changes of behaviour on their part will keep you on your toes. It's probably best to take a pragmatic view and lower your expectations rather than being over-critical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
By now you should be well on the way to returning a sense of personal meaning to your affairs. Both personally fulfilling creative matters and romantic relationships should be doing well. In addition to which, your financial prospects are improving.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
It will soon be time to enjoy yourself. For once, you really can afford to delegate tedious tasks to other people and indulge your own desire to let rip, whatever the consequences. Do not waste this golden opportunity to explore new possibilities.

Man allegedly instigated son to murder youth; both were arrested

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Mysuru

IN a tragic incident, the mother of a youth who was arrested on charges of murdering his friend committed suicide by hanging herself on Sunday while the father, who was the co-accused in the crime and was jailed, died of heart attack at a hospital on the midnight of Monday.

On Saturday night, Balaraj (28) was murdered by his friends Tejas, Sanjay and Kiran with a knife at Vidyanagara over a petty dispute. Tejas' father Samrat, an autorickshaw driver, was also accused in the crime as he was present during the crime scene and had allegedly instigated his son to attack Balaraj.

Based on the complaint filed by victim's family members, the Nazarbad police arrested Samrat, Tejas and his friends Sanjay and Kiran who went absconding in Bengaluru on Sunday. Meanwhile, unable to bear the humilation, Tejas' mother Indrani committed suicide by hanging herself at her house.

Even before Tejas' relatives were to come to terms with the developments, his father Samrat who was jailed at Mysuru Central Prison suffered a heart attack and died at Narayana Hrudayalaya after failing to respond to the treatment on Monday midnight.

City police commissioner Ramesh Banoth told reporters that Tejas was accused number one while Samrat was accused number four in the crime.

"Samrat was present at the spot when Tejas killed Balaraj. All the four were arrested from Bengaluru and sent to jail. Unable to bear the shock, the mother committed suicide. On Monday midnight, Samrat died after suffering a heart attack," he said.

Techie working in Aus ends life over son's ill-health

Belagavi: A 40-year-old woman, who was depressed over ill-health of her older son, allegedly committed suicide by jumping into Malaprabha river at Saundatti in Belagavi on Monday. The deceased is Priyadarshini Lingaraj Patil, a native of Dharwad, who was residing in Australia. According to police sources, for the past 13 years, Priyadarshini, her husband and two sons had been residing in Australia. She and her husband are software engineers. Priyadarshini was worried about the health of her 17-year-old son who had been complaining about stomach pain for the past four years. ENS

Top honchos of B'luru stock exchange booked for cheating

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Silver Jubilee Park police have registered a cheating case against 17 persons, including the chairman and executive director of BgSE Properties and Securities Limited (BgSEPL), formerly Bangalore Stock Exchange (BgSE), based on an order passed by the magistrate court in connection with a private complaint filed by Mumbai-based businessman Om Prakash Damani. BgSEPL, VH Prasad, Jhansilaxmi, Goutham Chand, Vinod Jain and several private entities are among the 17 accused in the FIR registered by the police recently.

The complainant Damani, represented by his son Vikram Damani, who holds the power of attorney, alleged that he had purchased 18,36,250 shares worth Rs 3 crore in BgSE from 2005 to 2007. When BgSE continued as a public limited company under the name and style of BgSEPL, Prasad and Jhansilaxmi approached the complainant and alleged that Gowtham Chand Marlecha, accused No 3, who runs a private company, was attempting to forcefully take over all the existing shares from the shareholders at very low prices. The duo advised him that all shareholders must collectively vote at the board meetings of the company to prevent third parties like Marlecha from taking over shares at extremely low prices and gaining a majority shareholding in BgSEPL.

Being induced by Prasad and Jhansilaxmi, the complainant was made to believe that their shares would only be sold jointly as a block (total of 12%) and was induced to hand over a proxy in favour of them to vote at board meetings or an annual general meeting. Eventually, they avoided calls and were not responding to messages of the complainant. In 2020, he found that the duo had conspired and joined hands with Goutham Chand and Vinod Jain and sold the shares of the complainant to Chand, without informing him.

As a result, through fraudulent use of proxy votes of the complainant, there is a substantial increase in the shareholding of the companies wherein Chand and Jain, who are currently chairman and executive director of BgSEPL, respectively, are promoters, the complainant stated.

Two NLSIU students robbed at knifepoint just outside college

PRAVEEN KUMAR @ Bengaluru

A second-year National Law School of India University (NLSIU) student and his female friend, who is also in her second year in the same college, were threatened and robbed of their mobile phones by two unidentified armed robbers.

The victims, Gautam Raj Phulera and Nishu Rani, were sitting at the bus stop outside the college near Gate 2 on Bengaluru University Road in Nagarabhavi in the early hours of Monday. Around 12.15 am, the accused, who were on a scooter, saw the victims at the bus stop sitting in the dark and threatened them at knifepoint. They then escaped with two mobile phones of the victims. Later, the two students called one of their phones and the accused demanded money to return their phones and threatened to make the private information public if they didn't. The victims sent Rs 5,000 to the UPI account of one of the accused. But the phones were not returned.

Phulera filed the police complaint around 3.30 am, stating that the accused came on a white Honda Activa scooter and took away their phones worth around Rs 45,000.

"After the accused escaped, Phulera took the mobile phone of a known person and called his phone. The accused who answered the call demanded Rs 15,000 to return the mobile phones. The accused also provided a mobile phone number to which the money had to be sent. The victims made a UPI transaction of Rs 5,000. The accused, however, have not returned the mobile phones and have switched off both the phones," said an officer, who is part of the investigation. Both the students are staying at the NLSIU hostel. The phone number to which the victims sent the money is in the name of one Rahul Kumar, the police said.

All-party meet on Cauvery row today

● K'taka to make its stand clear after meeting ● Team of legal experts to attend ● Leaders of all parties invited

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

THE all-party meeting to discuss Cauvery and Mahadayi water disputes will be held today (Wednesday). The meeting has gained significance as the Tamil Nadu government has approached the Supreme Court seeking directives to the Karnataka government to release Cauvery water and subsequently, the apex court deciding to constitute a separate bench to hear the dispute. The Karnataka government is expected to announce its stand after the meeting.

The meeting will be chaired by Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and will be attended by Deputy CM DK Shivakumar and most of the Cabinet ministers. The government has invited leaders of all political parties in Karnataka and their views will be gathered during the meeting. A team of legal experts will also be present at the meeting.

Issues such as the rain deficit the state has faced, current water levels at reservoirs in the Cauvery basin, the amount of water released to Tamil Nadu so far, water requirements for drinking and agriculture purposes in the state, and others will be discussed in the meeting.

The key agenda of the meeting, however, will be to discuss the legal aspects involved in the dispute and to explore the options before the government to protect the interest of farmers in the state.

The leaders will discuss how the Karnataka government should present its case strongly before the Supreme Court, which will hear the case on August 25.

Meanwhile, JDS leader and former CM HD Kumaraswamy said he will attend the all-party meeting and make his party's stand clear at the meeting.

PROTESTS ARE POLITICALLY MOTIVATED: DKS

DyCM DK Shivakumar said that the protests happening in the state over the Cauvery row are politically motivated. Speaking to reporters in Hassan, Shivakumar said that he had already placed the facts before the people and the state was facing distress. "Tamil Nadu has approached the court. We have to release 70 tmcft of water during normal rains and 32 tmcft when there is a deficit. We have already released 24 tmcft but are facing a shortage to release the remaining share. We have convened an all-party meeting where we will discuss further course of action," he said.

DKS sets 100-day deadline to finish Ph-1 of Yettinahole project

BR UDAYA KUMAR
@ Sakleshpur

EXPRESSING his unhappiness over the slow progress of Yettinahole integrated water supply project, Deputy Chief minister and Water Resources Minister DK Shivakumar here on Tuesday set a 100-day deadline to contractors to complete the first phase of the project. Engineers have been strictly told to lift the water on a trial basis by December, he added.

The Yettinahole project aims to provide water to 29 taluks of seven districts, including Hassan, Tumakuru, Kolar, Chikkaballapur, Ramanagara, Chikkamagaluru and Bengaluru Rural, by drawing 24.1 tmcft of water from Yettinahole, Kadumane, Kirihole and Hongadahalla tributaries of Kumaradhara and Netravati rivers in the Western Ghats. The estimated cost of the project is Rs 23,250 crore and the government has already spent Rs 14,500 crore.

Shivakumar, after a progress review meeting, told the media at Doddanagara village in Sakleshpur taluk that the project is slow because of problems in land acquisition and its passage through forest patches. He said villagers, farmers and coffee growers should abide by the directions of the government and law will take its course if anybody tries to disturb the project.

He said if the previous government had taken interest, the project would have been completed by now. He is planning to hold a review meeting every month to monitor the project.

Terming BJP protests against the release of Cauvery water to Tamil Nadu as politically motivated, he said Karnataka has already released 24 tmcft to the neighbouring state and 8 tmcft is remaining.

SC TO HEAR TN's PLEA ON AUG 25

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court will consider on Friday Tamil Nadu government's plea to direct Karnataka to release forthwith 24,000 cusecs of water from its reservoirs to save the standing paddy crops.

The issue will be considered by a bench of Justices BR Gavai, PS Narasimha and PK Mishra.

The bench was constituted by the CJI pursuant to considering the request put forth by Senior Advocate Mukul Rohatgi.

Tamil Nadu in its plea said the Cauvery Water Management Authority (CWMA) had on August 11, 2023, reduced the water to be released by Karnataka for 15 days (from August 11) from KRS and Kabini reservoirs to be realised at Billigundulu on the interstate border to 10,000 cusecs (0.864 tmcft per day) from 15,000 cusecs. "But even this has not been complied with by the Karnataka government," Tamil Nadu had said.

The Cauvery Water Regulatory Committee (CWRC) had on August 10 asked Karnataka to release 15,000 cusecs per day for 15 days. "The actual flow recorded at Billigundulu on August 11, 12, 13, and 14 was 6,148 cusecs, 4,852, 4,453 and 4,000 cusecs, respectively," Tamil Nadu informed the top court. Karnataka is duty bound to release 177.25 tmcft of Cauvery water to Tamil Nadu as per the 2018 order of the Supreme Court, TN said in its plea.

"About 14.91 lakh acres (net sown area) are dependent on Mettur reservoir, which in turn is dependent on the quantum of water realised at Billigundulu based on water released by Karnataka from KRS and Kabini reservoirs. During the southwest monsoon, both kuruvai and samba crops are sown and transplanted in the Cauvery delta region of Tamil Nadu. Hence, release of water from Mettur during the season is crucial for TN. About four million farmers and 10 million labourers are directly and indirectly dependent on Mettur water for their livelihood in TN. Agricultural operation in the delta region is suffering for want of adequate water and the crops are facing water stress. This would affect the state's agricultural production," Tamil Nadu added in its plea.

Tamil Nadu also prayed for directing Karnataka to ensure the stipulated release of water to TN for the month of September, make good the shortfall of 28.849 tmcft for the current irrigation year, and direct CWMA to ensure that Karnataka ensures stipulated monthly release during the remaining period of the current water year (June to September).

Police detain farmers who tried to block the Bengaluru-Mysuru highway in Mandya district on Tuesday | EXPRESS

Farmers try to block highway

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Mysuru

TENSION prevailed after farmers were detained when they tried to block the busy Bengaluru-Mysuru access-controlled highway at Iduvalu near Mandya on Tuesday to protest the release of Cauvery water from the Krishnaraja Sagar (KRS) reservoir.

The farmers congregated on the premises of Iduvalu school and took out a rally on the service road raising slogans against CM Siddaramaiah, DyCM DK Shivakumar and elected representatives from the region for releasing water to the neighbouring state at the cost of Karnataka farmers.

The agitating farmers and police personnel entered into a verbal duel and the cops detained them when they tried to enter the highway. Vehicular movement on the service road was affected for more than 30 minutes.

The farmers said that the BJP MPs were misleading farmers and were shedding crocodile tears. They said the Karnataka government was releasing water instead of filing a review petition in the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, the farmers poured into streets with bullock carts and tractors to register their protest against release of water from the KRS and Kabini reservoirs. They lashed out at the BJP leaders for not prevailing upon the Centre to stop the release of water and for failing to protect the interests of Karnataka farmers. The farmers alleged that the hasty decision will affect the water supply to Bengaluru and other cities in Karnataka and urged the policemen to support the farmers' stir.

100 days on, no Oppn leader in both Houses

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

A hundred days on, and the BJP is yet to elect a Leader of the Opposition (LOP). The BJP will enter history books as the only party in the state to go without an elected LOP for so long in Assembly and Council.

There are many privileges an Opposition leader enjoys, especially when the House is in session. The party stands to lose these privileges if it doesn't appoint a leader in either House, said a former BJP minister. While there is talk that appointments of the opposition leader has not happened because of a trust deficit between the BJP factions — one led by BL Santhosh and the other by BS Yediyurappa.

When the BJP core committee met on Monday, there was an air of expectation that the party can be resurrected in the state through unity and trust among the leaders, but that has not happened, said a source. The decision of appointing an Opposition leader lies with the central leadership, and the party's local leaders are surprised that it has not happened so far. BJP sources told TNIE, "While National General Secretary B L Santosh was here, sources close to his group had stated that CT Ravi and Basanagouda Yatnal would be nominated president and LOP respectively, but that was not accepted by the BJP high command." "Congress Working President and chief whip MLC Saleem Ahmed said, "It is most unfortunate that in a democracy, the main opposition party has not appointed an opposition leader in either House. Although it is an internal matter of the BJP, it is an issue of concern that it is not able to appoint an opposition leader in either the assembly or council. Sad to say but it only reflects the state of affairs of the party."

The Indian legislative system is modelled after the British parliamentary system, where the opposition leader is called a shadow PM and vacancy reflects a vacuum in leadership of the party.

Water contamination deaths: ZP CEOs responsible, says CM

BENGALURU: CM Siddaramaiah warned that ZP CEOs and Commissioners of Municipalities will be held responsible and suspended if incidents of deaths due to consumption of contaminated water repeat. Chairing a meeting to discuss issues related to drinking water here on Tuesday, he directed officials to conduct a cleanliness campaign in all districts and ensure that drinking water supply pipelines and drainage pipes are separate and there is no leakage. He asked the officials to submit a report in 15 days. Noting that a death was reported in Kavadigarahatti recently due to negligence by officials, Siddaramaiah stressed that departments of Rural Development, Health, Municipal Administration and Urban Development should work in tandem. ENS

Govt starts process to declare taluks drought-hit; orders crop survey

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

TO prepare the ground for declaring taluks that have received deficit rainfall as drought-hit taluks, the officials have been directed to do a crop survey and send the report to the State Government within 10 days. After chairing the Cabinet sub-committee, Revenue Minister Krishna Byre Gowda said standing crops in some parts of Karantaka face the risk of withering and the rain forecast for the last week of August is also not hopeful. "The Union Government has fixed criteria for declaring drought. Around 120 taluks in Karantaka have received deficit rains. But before declaring drought, crop survey has to be done as prescribed by the Centre," he said.

The "Ground Truthing" or verification, which is essential for a realistic and credible determination of drought at the taluk level will be done by selecting 10 villages in each taluk. The officials will have to visit the spot to prepare the report on the status of five major crops in those villages and the DCs will send the reports to the State Government.

"We have instructed the officials to immediately start the survey by selecting 10 villages in each taluks as per the Centre's guidelines and submit the report with 10 days. After getting the reports, we will convene a meeting of the cabinet sub-committee and look into the reports to take a decision on declaring drought-hit taluks," he said.

Supply uninterrupted power to farmers: CM

CM Siddaramaiah on Tuesday directed the energy department officials to ensure that there is uninterrupted power supply to farmers' IP sets, at least during peak time. This was conveyed at a review meeting in which Energy Minister KJ George and other officials of the department were present. He directed the officials concerned to ensure that there are no power thefts, leakages are plugged and ensure zero accidents.

Nagesh questions scrapping of NEP

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

FORMER education minister and senior BJP leader BC Nagesh challenged the State Government, saying he would prove that they have taken the opinion of various stakeholders, including children, before implementing the National Education Policy (NEP) in Karnataka. He demanded that the State government reveal the NEP documents that have loopholes.

Slamming Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar, who alleged that NEP was framed without taking state governments into confidence, Nagesh said it is an irresponsible statement and a politically motivated one. "In reality, NEP was framed after consulting stakeholders from the Department of State Educational Research and Training (DSERT), educational experts, vice-chancellors, parents, paediatricians and other experts, it was discussed and debated with them. I will prove this, will you accept this challenge?" Nagesh asked Shivakumar.

In a series of posts on social media platform X, Nagesh questioned Shivakumar on the reason for cancelling NEP 2020, that was discussed and studied for 10 years by scientists, educationists, child experts, teaching community and the public. "Will you tell the people of the state through official documents what are the loopholes in it?" he asked.

Claiming that NEP 2020 had already been implemented in CBSE schools, he said, "In Karnataka, there are many schools affiliated to CBSE and some of these schools are owned by Shivakumar and other Congress leaders. Will they change and implement the proposed State Education Policy syllabus in these schools?"

Former CM Basavaraj Bommai warned of a revolution against the government if NEP is withdrawn. He slammed the state government for taking a decision without any discussion, when VCs were present. Unfortunately, none of the VCs questioned the government for taking this decision. He was speaking at an event organised by People's Forum for Karnataka Education on NEP.

Bommai said, "By withdrawing NEP, the government is trying to make Karnataka backward. "Just because you got power, you cannot take decisions. People will revolt and teach you a lesson. You can oppose BJP, but not play with children's future," he said.

Nagesh said NEP has emphasised regional and mother tongue in the respective states. "Is there a fear that the provision of diverse learning in NEP will affect the English education provided in your (Shivakumar's) educational institutions?" he said.

On Monday, Shivakumar had called NEP the "Nagpur Education Policy". Hitting back at Shivakumar, Nagesh said it looks like the Congress government wants "Sonia Education Policy".

On the occasion of National Sports Day on August 29, the State Government is organising a state-level sports meet in Bengaluru in which 24 different events will be held, Sports and Youth Services Minister B Nagendra said. He said CM Siddaramaiah and DyCM DK Shivakumar will inaugurate the event

PM in SA for BRICS, may join Chandrayaan 3 descent virtually

Lander to soft land on the Moon's south pole at 18.04 hours

BALA CHAUHAN @Bengaluru

PRIME Minister Narendra Modi is likely to virtually join the landing programme of Chandrayaan 3 from South Africa in the last 15-20 minutes of the Lander's final descent to the Moon, said informed sources. The PM is on a three-day official visit to SA to attend the 15th BRICS summit. As per ISRO, the Lander Module (LM) and rover are scheduled to soft land on the designated area on the Moon's south pole at 18.04 hours, which will coincide with the sunrise on the region. The LM will receive its last command from the Earth station at 5.47 pm to initiate the automatic landing system (ALS) when it will be 30km from the Moon's surface.

For the next 700 seconds after ALS, that is, 11.5 minutes, the LM will be in rough breaking phase. The four engines will fire up and instead of free descent the Lander will be in controlled descent and will reach 7.4 km from the Moon. In the next 10 seconds, it will descend to a height 6.8 km away from the Moon and become vertical. Later, it will come down to either 1,300 metres or 800 metres, at which point the Lander will choose the landing site. If the surface below has a crater or a boulder, it has been programmed to choose an alternate site for safe and soft landing.

A special puja being held for Chandrayaan 3 success, in Mysuru on Tuesday

Plaint filed against Prakash Raj for comment on Chandrayaan

Bagalkot: Accusing multi-lingual actor Prakash Raj of making fun of India's prestigious Chandrayaan 3 project on his social media X account, Sriram Sene members filed a complaint against him at Banahatti police station in the district on Tuesday. The actor posted a caricature showing Chandrayaan sending a photo of a man, who is on the Moon, pouring tea. The post, however, did not go down well with right wing activists who accused him of insulting the scientists who are involved in such projects. In a video message, the complainant, Shivanand Gaikwad -- who is a member of Sriram Sene, alleged that Prakash Raj has lost his mental balance. Gaikwad demanded the actor's arrest. No FIR has been filed against the actor, said police.

Devas row was aimed at covering up 2G scam, says former ISRO chief

ANIL S @ Thiruvananthapuram

IN what could create ripples in the national politics, former ISRO chief G Madhavan Nair has indicated that the controversy over the Antrix-Devas deal was hatched to cover up the Rs 1.7 lakh crore 2G Spectrum scam involving then Union minister A Raja.

The Devas scam was seen as an opportunity by some people to corner then Prime Minister Manmohan Singh as the Department of Space (DOS) was directly under the PM, says Nair in his autobiography 'Rocketing Through The Skies', that was brought out a couple of days back.

Going by Nair's narrative, there was obvious political conniving behind raking up the Rs 2.8 lakh crore Devas row. In the wake of the 2G Spectrum scam, an official with A Raja wanted to save the minster's skin and tried to shove the responsibility of the Devas scam on to the shoulder of the then PM. In the book, Nair also casts serious aspersions on his successor K Radhakrishnan for his part in the controversy.

An audit query by the CAG highlighting that DOS had caused a presumptive loss of Rs2.8 lakh crore on account of the Antrix-Devas deal by short-selling the spectrum, triggered what was later termed as the Devas scam, says Nair.

Referring to then additional secretary G Balachandran, the book says, "I even heard at one point that there were rumours that the additional secretary was working with minister A Raja and that the audit query had been deliberately leaked to the media to help Raja dilute his case."

The book is an English retelling of his 2017 autobiography 'Agnipareekshakal'. The chapter 'A Sordid Drama: The Devas Scam', in the new work updated by Jaya G Nair and brought out by Rupa Publications, details the manner of the build-up of the Devas controversy.

14 jumbos radio collared, more in line

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

MORE elephant task forces will be set up to address the issue of rising man-elephant conflicts, Forest, Environment and Ecology Minister Eshwar Khandre said on Tuesday.

The decision was taken after holding a meeting with state forest department officials to take stock of the ground situation. Officials apprised the minister that so far, 14 elephants were radio collared and there were 30 more radio collars available with the department.

The officials said they were trying to identify the elephants that need to be radio collared. "There is no need to track all the elephants that come out of the forest. Problematic tuskers and heads of herds are being identified to be radio collared. Each radio collar costs around Rs 7 lakh. An alert mechanism has also been put in place where citizens are alerted through WhatsApp, text messages and other forms of communication of the presence of elephants so that conflict is minimised," the official said. Strenghtening of elephant proof trenches and rail barricades was also discussed at the meeting. Officials said more new places were being identified from where elephants were entering human habitation, leading to conflicts.

No other option to address traffic issues: Official

FOREST department sources said as per procedures the proposal will now be sent to the National Board for Wildlife (NBW). "We are not keen for the elevated corridor, but looking at Bengaluru's traffic congestion and rising pressure, there seems to be no other option. The area proposed in Anekal range is a crucial chicken neck. BNP houses a healthy elephant population, cases of man-animal conflict are high here. BNP is also important as it is a crucial elephant corridor connecting to Tamil Nadu. Also, BNP houses two tigers now," said a forest department official.

Meanwhile, the Board also approved setting up of a standing committee for SBW, on the lines of the one set up for the NBW. Board members said under the amended Wildlife Protection Act, a committee can be constituted. It will be headed by the vice-chairman of SBW, who in this case is the forest minister. The committee will have ten members from the existing wildlife board. This is similar to the standing committee of the NBW, where the MoEFCC minister is the head.

Temple ceremonies for safe landing

KV Ramachandra, a member of the organisation, said, "The group plans to do a similar puja on Wednesday as well during the landing to pray for the 100% success of India's Moon mission."

In Mysuru, devotees performed 'Sarvartha Sidhi Yaga' at Anjaneya temple for the safe soft landing of India's third mission to the Moon.

Politicians are also thronging temples to offer their prayers. BJP MLA TS Srivatsa along with 82 party workers will travel from Mysuru to Sri Raghavendra Swamy Matha, Mantralaya, wishing the mission a success. MP S Muniswamy along with BJP workers performed puja in Kolaramma temple, Kolar and said, "The entire world's eyes are on India." At Shree Srikanteshwara Swamy Temple in Nanjangud on Monday, a similar puja was organised and rangolis were made of Chandrayaan's spacecraft.

Kukke Subramanya temple in Dakshina Kannada also performed a special puja. Similar ceremonies were witnessed around the country.

Before the mission launch on July 14, a group of scientists visited Tirupati for its success and offered prayers. The group also carried with them a miniature model of Chandrayaan-3 to seek the Lord's blessings.

While India is united in prayer, the NASA stands among the hopeful. In case the mission is successful, it would mark humanity's first touchdown on the Moon's southern pole which will yield invaluable data for not just India but all countries.

T'gana HC asks police for footage

HYDERABAD: A bench of the Telangana High Court, comprising Chief Justice Alok Aradhe and Justice T Vinod Kumar, on Tuesday, directed the Police department to submit CCTV footage from the location where V Lakshmi, a tribal woman, was taken into custody by the LB Nagar police on August 15 and from the site where she was allegedly subjected to physical assault by the cops. The bench was hearing a suo motu PIL by converting a letter penned by Justice Surepally Nanda, a sitting judge of the High Court, into a PIL.

Trader, driver beaten up for transporting cattle in Bidar

MARUTI BAVIDODDI @ Bidar

A group of people forcibly stopped a van transporting cattle in APMC Market in Aurad town, and beat up the van driver and owner of the cattle. The two, who sustained injuries, were admitted to a hospital for treatment.

Cattle trader Abdul Salim, from Mannalli village of Bidar taluk, lodged a complaint at Aurad police station. He named the accused as Anil Devakatte, Munna Hakke, Sagar Chidre, Rajani Dama, Laxman Kumbar, Basavaraj Chowkampalle and Vishal Koli, all residents of Aurad. The Aurad police registered a case against the accused under Sections 143,147, 341,323, 504, 149 of the IPC, and launched a probe into the incident. In a counter complaint, Chowkampalle and Vishal Koli filed a complaint against Abdul Salim, van driver Mujeeb Shaikh, who also hails from Mannalli village of Bidar taluk, Mohiyouddin Khureshi, Moies Khureshi, Reeyaz Khureshi and Younus Khureshi, all residents of Aurad. The Aurad police registered a case under the Karnataka Prevention of Slaughter and Preservation of Cattle Ordinance, 2020.

KCR REFUSES TO BITE ANTI-INCUMBENCY BAIT, RETAINS SITTING MLAs

Election fever has truly gripped Telangana, which will go to polls most likely this December. And, as is his wont, Bharat Rashtra Samithi (BRS) chief and CM K Chandrashekar Rao blew the war bugle by releasing the list of his party's candidates for 115 out of the 119 Assembly constituencies at one go. Contrary to speculation, he dropped just seven of the sitting legislators knowing full well that several of them are facing anti-incumbency. He himself, for the first time, will be contesting from two constituencies—Gajwel, which he currently represents, and Kamareddy. It is typical of KCR, who loves the surprise element to take his opponents and allies off guard. The Left parties, which dreamed of a good bargain, were left to their own devices.

Nonetheless, his move raises a couple of pertinent questions. Why has he retained almost all the incumbent MLAs? Logically speaking, had he axed many of them, like what the BJP did in Karnataka, it would have been a tacit admission of troubled waters. The victory of new faces isn't assured either. With many aspirants for each seat, a big change could also have opened a Pandora's Box within the party. Of course, many aspirants, who had pinned their hopes on securing a ticket, would be disappointed now. But KCR appears to have decided not to rock the boat and importantly, perhaps believes that he could beat the anti-incumbency with his narrative of 'developed Telangana' and pacify possible rebels. In other words, he is cautious and defiant at the same time.

He is in a position to take this stand since his party is perceived to be still ahead of its rivals, BJP and Congress. If his gamble pays off, he will be the first CM from the South to score a hat-trick of wins. The other query is about the rationale behind his decision to contest from two segments. For one thing, it has become a topic of hot debate diverting attention from his unchanged team. It should be a cakewalk for him in both places and gives his party that much-needed boost in the erstwhile Nizamabad district. Victory in two segments further cements his stature as he has set his sights on the national scene.

Now, it is up to the Congress and BJP to pick their candidates for the big battle. One thing they cannot do is wean away biggies from the BRS now that KCR has retained all of them. But Congress especially has an advantage. If it can strategise imaginatively, it could take advantage of the anti-incumbency.

OPERATION HASTA: CONG PLAYING THE BJP CARD

An exodus of MLAs and leaders from the BJP into the Congress appears to be on the cards in Karnataka. Most making the switch are former Congressmen and CM Siddaramaiah's loyalists. Dubbed 'Operation Hasta', the Congress is doing unto the BJP what it had done unto them in 2019. The Congress has its eyes set on the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) polls, and later, the Lok Sabha elections. The grapevine is abuzz with the names of Yeshwanthpur MLA S T Somashekhar, RR Nagar MLA N Munirathna, KR Puram MLA Byrathi Basavaraj and Mahalakshmi Layout MLA K Gopalaiah, who carry considerable weight in Bengaluru and can change fortunes in the BBMP elections. Yellapur MLA Shivaram Hebbar and Ayanur Manjunath of the JDS are reportedly in touch with Congress leaders, and the name of Lingayat heavyweight V Somanna is also doing the rounds.

Ironically termed 'Ghar wapsi'—a saffron party term for 'misled' Hindus returning to the community fold—this reverse movement is bound to give a fillip to the Congress, already invigorated by its victory in the Assembly elections. The grand old party hopes to rattle the BJP and sally forth into the 2024 elections to achieve its ambitious target of 20 seats. It must be noted here that the Congress record in the 2019 parliamentary elections was dismal—it has a sole MP in DK Suresh, so 20 seats can be a tall ask. The paradigms of the BBMP and Lok Sabha elections are very different. A variety of factors are at play during the general elections, prime among them being PM Narendra Modi's reach.

Though the BJP's Karnataka unit is in a state of disarray—especially as veteran Yediyurappa is now in semi-retirement—it may not be easy for the Congress to wean away the BJP's committed voters. The 'turncoats', who are seen as opportunists and are likely to have lost both supporters and credibility, may not have much of an impact on the electorate. Instead, they could present a problem of plenty for the Congress, which is already contending with many ambitious aspirants. The trend of leaders jumping camp before elections, ideology no bar, is the reality of Indian politics. It is when they cross the floor after governments are formed that the voter is left cheated.

QUICK TAKE

THE BIAS OF THE BOT

AI scientists unsparingly research whether chatbots display biases. ChatGPT assures it is impartial, but researchers claim it occasionally reveals implicit bias. The worry is about chatbots exhibiting political bias, which, through responses to calibrated questions or prompts, can subtly elbow users towards a particular point of view—akin to how social media biases operate. The implications, if true, are problematic. Bias can creep in through creators' personal preferences or any partiality in original training datasets if the cleaning systems fail to remove it. A recent research paper in the Public Choice journal has the AI world animatedly debating the challenge and possible resolutions.

One consumes violence without challenging it. Neutrality has begun replacing outrage. Ethics as protest is a performative act the spectator finds too distant after the ritual of watching

A PLEA FOR ETHICS TO RE-ENTER THE REALM OF POLITICS

SHIV VISVANATHAN

Social scientist associated with THE COMPOST HEAP, a group researching alternative imaginations

One of the strangest contrasts one notices in public life is the difference between politics and ethics. Politics is public, demanding the presence of an audience. Ethics feels almost private and personal. The way the two are philosophically separated is worrying. While politics masquerades as a technocratic strategy, ethics is almost invisible. One notices these tendencies in two recent and very public events.

The first was the gossip and voyeuristic excitement surrounding Christopher Nolan's Oppenheimer. It is the stuff of theatre enacted as a science. Robert Oppenheimer is often called the father of the atomic bomb. There is a poignancy to his act, which almost blends ethics and politics together. In fact, Austrian journalist Robert Jungk, in his Brighter than a Thousand Suns, calls Oppenheimer the Hamlet of science—both in terms of his hesitancy and silence. Two events illustrate this attitude. When Oppenheimer is testing the bomb, he quotes from the Gita about the destructive potential of the bomb and cosmically claims: "The physicists have known sin." Later, during the US Congress' investigations, when Oppie is asked why he created the bomb, he is dismissive, instead giving a technical answer to a technical question.

The narratives of the nuclear bomb have desperately struggled to club ethics and politics together, but sadly, whether it is the bombing of Hiroshima or an abstract mass killing, 'strategy' as the immaculate principle takes over decision-making. Death, even genocidal death, becomes the subject for a cost-benefit analysis. There is, in the narratives, a sense of scandal—but ethics does not make it to the forefront. Morality is discerned at a distance, while science and objectivity dominate the narrative. The film on Oppenheimer is poignant in capturing this ambivalence.

In a more immediate sense, one senses the same gap in the Manipur crisis. The displacements, rapes and murders of tribals are read through the lenses of electoral politics. The logic of politics dominates the urgency of ethics. Narendra Modi's silence and his delayed response to the rapes and murders of Kuki tribals is read as strategy. In a metaphysical sense, Modi in Parliament evades the ethical question with patriarchal and patriotic piety. There is no Dostoevskian interrogator to pin him down and demand he articulate his policy towards the other. Oppenheimer at least remains a hesitant Hamlet, but Modi survives as a colourless technocrat and a calculating politician.

SOUMYADIP SINHA

In both the examples I have cited above, one senses the deterioration of ethics. Ethics implies impoverishment in this era. Yet the poignancy of ethics, though absent, haunts these narratives. Consider a simple case: the Armed Forces Special Powers Act (AFSPA) empowers the army—tasked with pursuing insurgents—with a pass to commit rapes and murders. An analysis of 1,500 cases of rape and murder filed by lawyer Colin Gonzalvez shows that the perpetrators were hardly haunted by doubt or sin.

One is compelled to ask: what happened to ethics in public life? One sorely, almost stereotypically, misses Gandhi in everyday life. Every individual needs a touch of Gandhi in them. How does one reintroduce ethics into political and bureaucratic life? What one sensed in Manipur was the politics of erasure backed by an absence of guilt and memory. Watching Parliament during the Manipur debate showed that the melodrama of politics can be equally hypocritical. Sadly, even Manipur, like the bomb, is read as a technical answer to a technical question.

If one thing has to be added to the absence of ethics in public life, it is the presence of the expert as an active actor. Policy experts seem ethically neutral. Experts hide behind the mantle of science and service. How many of us have heard of the word 'iatrogeny', which the social critic Ivan Illich describes as expert-induced illness? The expert as a source of disaster is a monograph waiting to be written in many domains.

Another reason for seeing violence as a neutral space is that we reduce the creativity of citizenship to an ethically neutral spectatorship. Spectatorship, unlike the poetic act of witnessing, is neutral, even passive. One is reminded of a famous anecdote in communication studies. It is about a young woman called Kitty Genovese.

The year is 1964. It is late at night in a New York suburb, and a young woman called Kitty Genovese is walking alone. She realises a man is stalking her, screams and begins running towards her apartment. Lights come on in the flats around and people gather at the windows. The stalker realises that no one has moved and stabs Kitty over 30 times. Later, when sociologists asked the spectators why no one moved, most of them confessed that they felt they were watching TV.

One consumes violence without challenging it. Neutrality has begun replacing any outrage. Ethics as dissent or protest is a performative act that the spectator finds too distant after the ritual of watching.

What is worse is that a few spectators remember. But indifference seems to be the frame through which violence is viewed. How does one bring back caring to such a domain? We have to summon the ordinary citizen to redeem the poetics of ethics. One needs to introduce what the Jewish philosopher Martin Buber called I-Thou in public space. An 'I' and 'Thou' in public converts the attitude towards the other into one of reverence and care. The stranger, rather than being an alien, is a part of us. Gandhi's ethics of care and courage is relevant here. The Dalai Lama cites the importance of compassion in this context. Such a political plea, whether from Gandhi or Dalai Lama, verges on the ironic when we confront Kashmir or Assam.

One has to realise the value of dissent in this context. A Daniel Ellsberg who leaked the Pentagon Papers exposing Vietnam War secrets, a Stan Swamy challenging the public policy on the tribals, and an Irom Sharmila fasting for over a decade are the exemplars we need to follow. Ethics always needs the exemplar. In following the exemplar, we create a sense of everydayness. To the exemplar we must add the power of storytelling. Ethics is a summons to memory. We have to be witnesses and storytellers. Manipur desperately needed a solution backed by ethics. One wishes one could return to the old-fashioned world, where character-building and nation-building went together. Democracy desperately needs the ethical individual more than the sociological validation of the voter and the consumer.

CRACKING THE SAVING-INVESTMENT CODE TO BOOST GROWTH

TULSI JAYAKUMAR

Professor, Finance & Economics and Executive Director, Centre for Family Business & Entrepreneurship at Bhavan's SPJIMR

A general election lurking around the corner and India coming out ahead of its peers in terms of how it recovered from the Covid pandemic leads us to question how robust this economic recovery is, the contributors to growth, and the funding sources of such growth.

A nation's growth can be driven by its residents' consumption, investment by the private corporate sector, government spending, and net exports. Investment is a critical growth driver since it builds the economy's productive capacity and allows for non-inflationary consumption or consumption not serviced through imports.

However, India's investment has been a cause for constant worry over the past decade. Data from the Reserve Bank of India on the ratio of Gross Capital Formation (GCF) to Gross Domestic Product (GDP) at current prices—the measure for the gross domestic investment in India—shows that such investment had continuously fallen from its peak of 39.8% in 2010-11 to 33.8% in 2018-19, even before Covid. This had further shrunk to 30.7% in 2019-20 and then to 27.3% in 2020-21 due to a Covid-induced slump.

While 2021-22 witnessed growth in investment to 31.4%, recent data suggests a definite revival of private investment in 2022-23. An RBI study provides data on the projects financed by banks and financial institutions, finances raised through external commercial borrowings or the Initial Public Offering (IPO) route—all of which point to a robust investment outlook in India in 2022-23.

In 2022-23, 982 projects were at the investment plan stage, with a total capital outlay of ₹3,52,624 crore—higher than the capital outlay seen in any year since 2014-15.

The impact of these outlays on growth, were they to fructify, would depend on the marginal propensity to consume (MPC). Such MPC refers to the proportion of a raise in income spent on consumption, not saved. Based on data from 1990-2020, the MPC for India has been estimated at 0.5. Increases in investment are linked to increases in GDP through the Keynesian multiplier, which is calculated by the value 1/(1–mpc). Based on an MPC value of 0.5, the Keynesian multiplier for India at a macro level would be 2, and thus an investment of ₹3,52,624 crore would lead to a doubling of the GDP to ₹7,05,248 crore.

Data also suggests robust capex recovery, not merely in volume terms but also in terms of the quality of investment projects. Thus, more than two-thirds of these investment projects are large and mega-sized projects, involving project costs of ₹1,000 crore to ₹5,000 crore, and above ₹5,000 crore, respectively. Most of these projects financed by banks and financial institutions (more than 93%) are investments in green field (new) projects. In comparison, modernisation and expansion projects account for a tiny proportion of the total project cost (6.1%). Of the total projects sanctioned by banks and financial institutions, a majority (60%) are infrastructure projects, of which roads and bridges hold the maximum share. Other industries that have witnessed intent to invest in capex include metal and metal products, construction, textile, and food products.

PIXABAY

> Investment is a critical growth driver since it builds the economy's productive capacity and allows for non-inflationary consumption

That such an investment recovery is not just a chimaera is corroborated through the movement of specific coincident indicators. For instance, the increased investment in the construction sector is attested through increases in steel consumption and cement production. In contrast, increased investment in machinery and equipment is evident from increased imports and production of capital goods.

The sustainability of an investment-led growth model is contingent on its funding. The question to ask in this regard is: Are we funding our domestic investment through our own (domestic) savings, which refers to the total of private (corporate and household) savings and public savings? Or are we relying on external savings to fund such investments? If it is the latter, we open ourselves to the risk of a rising Current Account Deficit and its attendant consequences.

India has had a continuous saving-investment gap between 2004-05 and 2019-20, leading to domestic investments being funded externally. More importantly, the Gross Domestic Savings as a proportion of Gross National Disposable Income (GNDI) has also gone down from a peak of 37.8% in 2007-08 to 31.7% in 2018-19 and further to 28.2% in 2020-21, when household savings fell due to Covid-induced factors. Such gross savings increased to 30% of the GDP in 2022-23, led by the government reducing its dissaving. The resultant saving-investment gap of 1.4% represents a tolerable Current Account Deficit since it lies within the 1–2% range considered optimal for India.

It thus appears that India has finally cracked the Saving-Investment code to improve growth, managing to gradually reverse the declining trends in Savings and Investments, even while the S-I gap remains within tolerable limits.

Yet concerns regarding the sustainability of capex revival remain.

One, many investment projects are not broad-based and are skewed towards very few Indian states. Thus, in 2022-23, just five states—Uttar Pradesh, Gujarat, Odisha, Maharashtra, and Karnataka—accounted for a 57.2% share in total project costs. Again, while Uttar Pradesh and Odisha have significantly increased their share in the total project costs sanctioned by banks and financial institutions, the share of Maharashtra, Karnataka and other states has reduced compared to the period between 2013-14 and 2020-21.

Two, as the rating agency Moody's pointed out, curtailment of civil society and political dissent and the associated political strife are likely to impede the completion of investment projects.

Finally, India must pay attention to maintaining low and stable inflation. It is essential to consolidate our small wins for growth.

'Decision on Rohini panel report before LS polls'

A count of all castes is must for proportional distribution of reservation, says MoS, Social Justice, Ramdas Athawale

PREETHA NAIR @New Delhi

NEARLY a month after the Rohini Commission submitted its report to the Centre, Minister of State for Social Justice and Empowerment Ramdas Athawale said the government is likely to decide on the implementation of the report before the general election next year.

Speaking to this newspaper, Athawale said the report was submitted to the President last month. "I think the government will decide on the Rohini Commission report before the election. Only a few caste groups among OBCs were enjoying the reservation benefits and other welfare schemes so far. So, the panel's role was to examine which caste group is receiving the most benefits of 27 per cent reservation and the groups who have been left out of the reservation pool," said Athawale.

The commission, which looked into the equitable redistribution of reservation and other benefits for OBCs, submitted its report last month after getting 14 extensions in the last six years. It was learned that in its report the panel found that only a small number of caste groups among all OBCs were availing of the reservation and other benefits. There are over 2,600 caste groups listed in the Central OBC list.

According to analysts, there will be political backlash from some dominant caste groups if the government decides to implement the proposals of the panel in the run-up to the elections.

"The government will have to consider all that. Now, the creamy layer of the OBC group, which gets more benefits, is also angry. However, my party's position is that sub-categorisation of OBCs is needed," said the minister.

The Rohini Commission report assumes extra significance at a time when the Supreme Court has refused to stay the publication of the Bihar caste survey which has been completed. The renewed demand of several Opposition-ruled states and its allies for a nationwide caste census to determine reservations for OBCs in jobs and educational institutions has put the ruling BJP in a tight spot. However, the BJP's position is ambivalent in this matter. "My party (RPI) has also demanded nation- wide caste census with the government several times. Our party's stand is that a count of all castes is necessary for proportional distribution of reservation and other benefits," said Athawale.

While several parties maintaining that if the government wants to implement the equitable distribution of 27 per cent among the OBCs, it should first conduct a caste census to have comprehensive data on the number of the OBCs. However, the Minister said that a caste census is not required to implement the proposals of the Rohini Commission. "We already know how many OBC caste groups are there. So we don't need a caste census to enumerate that," he said.

COMMISSION IN A NUTSHELL

October, 2017
4-member committee, headed by Justice G Rohini was set up for the sub-categorisation of OBC

January 2, 2018

July 31, 2023
The committee submitted its report

Objectives
- Forming scientific data on sub-categories
- Ensuring equitable redistribution of 27% quota benefits among sub-communities
- Commission also undertook exercise of recommending corrections for repetitions as well as inconsistencies in the OBC list

Findings
- Only a small number of caste groups among OBCs were availing of the reservation and other benefits
- There are over 2,600 caste groups listed in the Central OBC list

Implication
- Political backlash likely from some dominant caste groups proposals of panel may be initiated in the run-up to the elections
- Panel report assumes extra significance at a time when the Supreme Court has refused to stay publication of the Bihar caste survey

SC: No provision in Constitution bars its applicability to J&K

SHRUTI KAKKAR @New Delhi

BRUSHING aside the contention that the applicability of Indian Constitution to the state of Jammu and Kashmir had frozen after the J&K Constitution came into effect in 1957, the Supreme Court five-judge bench on Tuesday said that there is no provision in the Indian Constitution that bars its applicability over the state.

Hearing a batch of pleas challenging the abrogation of the provision which granted the state special status, the CJI DY Chandrachud-led bench said that Article 5 of the J & K Constitution categorically showed the application of the Indian Constitution to J&K.

"The net consequence would be that the Constitution of India over J&K would stand frozen as of 1957," the bench, also comprising of Justices SK Kaul, Sanjiv Khanna, BR Gavai and Surya Kant, said.

"No further development in Indian constitution can apply to J&K according to you. How can that be accepted? If Article 370 ceases to operate and Article 1 continues to operate – J&K is an integral part of India. Surely, the jurisdiction of every democratically elected institution is not excluded in... There has to be then a provision in Indian Constitution which excludes its applicability to J&K," the bench said.

The court also said, "Article 5 says that the legislative and executive powers of the State would extend to all matters except those with respect to which the Parliament has power to make laws. That means the provisions of the Indian Constitution. That postulates that the Indian Constitution does apply to J&K. Unless we accept that Article 370 existed till 2019, there would be no trammel on the jurisdiction of parliament. If we accept your argument, there would be no restraint on the power of parliament."

The remarks were made as Senior Advocate Dinesh Dwivedi argued that all the powers conferred under Article 370 ceased to operate once the J & K Constitution was enacted. Drawing court's attention to the fact that accession of Kashmir was based on the condition that it would retain its internal sovereignty and not be bound by the Indian Constitution, Dwivedi also said that "Merely because Kashmir had ceded external sovereignty, it does not mean that internal sovereignty was also ceded."

Considering Dwivedi's submission, Justice SK Kaul while laying emphasis on the fact that Article 370 had inadvertently remained on the statue said that it would be difficult to accept that Constituent Assembly debates amounted to an assurance of Article 370 dissolving itself.

Red tape replaced by red carpet as India set to be $5 trillion economy: PM

YESHI SELI @New Delhi

THE first official engagement in the run-up to the BRICS Summit that begins in Johannesburg on Wednesday, the BRICS Business Forum (BBF), saw PM Narendra Modi speak about India's economy. Inviting investors to India and become a part of its growth trajectory, the PM said India will soon be $5-trillion economy.

Chinese President Xi Jingping, despite being present in Johannesburg, was conspicuous by his absence in the BBF. Russian President Vladimir Putin addressed the gathering virtually.

"India is the world's fastest growing economy and will touch the $5-trillion mark soon. India will be the world's growth engine in the years ahead. Reforms in India have helped in ease of doing business. Replaced red tape by red carpet. The defence and space sectors are now open to the private sector. Women are equal partners in every sphere of life. I invite everyone to be a part of the Indian growth story and to come and invest in India where UPI has brought about a revolution as from street vendors to shopping malls use digital payments,'' said PM Modi, who was received at Waterkloof Air Force Base in Johannesburg by South Africa's Deputy President Paul Mashatile.

PM Modi also spoke about direct benefit transfers which have crossed $360 billion. He also highlighted the growth of infrastructure and said the in the coming years budget for the same was $120 billion. PM Modi was greeted by a Indian diaspora where some women tied rakhi to him. He saw a model of a Swaminarayan temple that will be ready by next year.

President Putin in his virtual address spoke about the unfairness of the sanctions imposed on Russia. He spoke of encouraging trade in local currencies within BRICS.

South African President Cyril Ramaphosa spoke about the expansion of BRICS and how the influence of this grouping was growing globally.

Meanwhile, Xi was the man of the moment in South Africa. He was received by President Ramaphosa at the airport and also received the Order of South Africa award earlier on Tuesday. After receiving the award Xi said that China-South Africa strategic partnership had entered a 'golden era.'

Talks on cheetah unlikely following nine deaths

The death of nine cheetahs (including three cubs), is likely to be a deterrent on further talks on India's ambitious Cheetah Project with South Africa during PM Modi's ongoing visit to Johannesburg. India had flown in 12 cheetahs earlier this year, following the signing of a MoU which would facilitate translocation of 100 cheetahs to India over the next decade

Obsolete laws should replace rules that suit present needs, says Speaker

PREETHA NAIR @New Delhi

LOK SABHA Speaker Om Birla on Tuesday said that obsolete laws should be replaced by contemporary laws to suit the relevance and requirements of present times.

Addressing the valedictory session of the 9th Commonwealth Parliamentary Association (CPA) India Region Conference at Udaipur, Birla noted that socio-economic transformation in the country can be achieved by making necessary changes in the laws with a transparent and accountable governance system.

Referring to the need for modern laws in the present context, Birla noted that it will take the country on the path of growth and prosperity. Legislatures are platforms for thorough debates and discussions to meet the present and future challenges, asserted Birla.

Expressing concern over the decline in dignity and decorum in legislatures, Birla observed that dignity of legislatures depends on how lawmakers behave in the House to improve people's lives. "Dignity and prestige of our Legislatures will increase only when people's representatives hold meaningful discussions and dialogues on important issues of the country and society. People's representatives have their responsibility to reflect the hopes and aspirations of the people and to solve their problems by bringing them before the government," Birla said.

Birla highlighted the role of legislators in finding solutions to present and future challenges. By taking positive initiatives to solve issues of their regions or states and by nurturing a comprehensive action plan.

Car safety rating system draws positive response

PARVEZ SULTAN @New Delhi

INDIA'S first car crash safety ratings floated on Tuesday received an overwhelming response with the ministry of road transport and highways (MoRTH) receiving 30 applications for testing of different automobile models on the first day of its launch.

The scheme — Bharat New Car Assessment Programme (NCAP) — launched by the union minister for road transport and highways Nitin Gadkari will be implemented from October 1. Under the scheme, car makers can offer their vehicles tested as per Automotive Industry Standard (AIS) 197. Based on the performance of the car in the tests, the vehicle will be awarded star ratings on a scale of 0-5. "The ratings will help potential car customers make informed decision," said Anurag Jain, secretary, MoRTH. "We have 1.5 lakh fatalities on roads every year. We have less number of accidents than the US but deaths are much more.

Indians eat low-nutrient food, gorge on dairy: Study

KAVITA BAJELI-DATT @New Delhi

INDIANS consume more dairy products than healthier fruits and vegetables, according to a study published in the Journal of Human Nutrition and Dietetics. The study raised concern about low nutrient intake and called for a public health campaign to correct the anomaly. It further said that rural and poor women were adversely affected by this gap.

The study titled, 'Dietary Patterns in North and South India: A Comparison with EAT-Lancet Dietary Recommendations', showed that Indians consumed 25 per cent dairy foods, 23 per cent added fats and only 15 per cent whole grains, and four per cent protein vegetarian.

According to the EAT-Lancet guidelines, wholegrain (at 32 per cent) and protein vegetables (at 23 per cent) should form a significant chunk of food intake. Dairy foods should be only five per cent. "The diets of the study participants were mainly plant-based and high in dairy but lacking in nutrient-rich foods such as vegetables and fruits," it said.

The findings are based on a survey of 8,762 adults in Sonipat in Haryana and Vizag in Andhra Pradesh in 2019.

Research finds gender, income indicators in diet

The consumption of various foods was also different among men and women. While women consumed starchy vegetables, which includes potatoes, corn, peas, and lentils, and all vegetables, men took more non-vegetarian protein. Similarly, the difference between poor and rich varied too. The rich ate more vegetables, fruits, and dairy items, the study found. According to EAT-Lancet, wholegrain (32%) and vegetables (23%) should be significant part of food intake

"Vegetables and fruits were consumed in lower quantities, whereas dairy and added fats were consumed in higher quantities than recommended by the EAT-Lancet recommendations," it said.

The study found that when compared by urban and rural residents, the consumption of starchy vegetables, all vegetables, fruits and protein-rich foods was higher in urban areas. However, in rural areas, the consumption of whole grains and dairy products was higher. The consumption of various foods was also different among men and women. While women consumed starchy vegetables, which includes potatoes, corn, peas, and lentils, and all vegetables, men took more non-vegetarian protein.

Similarly, the difference between poor and rich varied too. The rich ate more vegetables, fruits, and dairy items, the study found.

The study also found that whole grains, all vegetables, fruits, dairy, and added fats consumption were higher in Vizag than in Sonipat, while the mean quantity consumed of starchy vegetables and added sugars was higher in Sonipat than in Vizag.

Speaking with this paper, Prof Sailesh Mohan, one of the authors of the study, "Compared to the EAT-Lancet recommendations, the study participants were consuming inadequate amounts of nutrient-rich fruits and vegetables which are very beneficial to health, but consuming more dairy, refined foods (white rice, flours), fats and sugars, which adversely impact health."

"Given the high burden of malnutrition and cardiometabolic diseases in India, this is very disconcerting from a population health perspective," he said. "We need policy actions for making micronutrient-rich foods and healthy sustainable diets available and affordable to all, with a particular focus on the poor and rural populations," said Mohan, who is a Professor in the Public Health Foundation of India and Director, Centre for Chronic Conditions and Injuries.

Centre allocates extra 2 LT of sugar to check prices during festival season

JITENDRA CHOUBEY @New Delhi

UNLIKE tomato and onion prices, the government sits in a comfortable position regarding sugar prices and is all set to keep it under check during the upcoming festive season.

In view of strong demand for sugar considering upcoming festivals of Onam, Raksha Bandhan, and Krishna Janmashtami, the government has made an additional allocation of 2 lakh metric tonnes (LMT).

This 2 LMT will be added above the current 23.5 LMT already allocated for the month of August, 2023. The additional sugar in the domestic market will ensure reasonable prices all over the country.

The government has already kept sugar prices in check despite the rise in international price of sugar. The international prices of sugar increased by around 25 per cent in the last one year. However, the average retail price of sugar in India is about ₹43.30 per kg and is likely to remain in range. Moreover, there has been less than 2 per cent annual inflation in the country in sugar prices in the last 10 years.

During the current sugar season (October-September) 2022-23, India is estimated to produce of 330 LMT sugar after diversion of about 43 LMT for ethanol production.

Domestic consumption is expected to be around 275 LMT in the current year.

As per government sources, India has enough stock of sugar to meet its domestic demand for the remaining months of the current sugar season – 2022-23. There will be optimum closing stock of 60 LMT available at the end of this season – towards the end of September. Government estimates said that this stock would be enough to meet over two months of demand.

In June, India had put a cap on sugar export due to speculation of weak monsoon due to El Nino. The El Nino year is identified with weaker monsoon due to warming of sea surface temperature of the Pacific Ocean. Weaker monsoon can dent production of sugar. Meanwhile, India is the second largest producer and exporter of sugar in the world.

SWEET DEAL

25% rise – in international prices of sugar in 1 year

43.30 per kg - Average retail price of sugar in India is likely to remain in range

Less than 2% - annual inflation in sugar prices in the country (in 10 years)

Enough stock to meet domestic demand: Govt

As per government sources, India has enough stock of sugar to meet its domestic demand for the remaining months of the current sugar season – 2022-23. Displaced persons must get Aadhaar cards, says SC panel

SHRUTI KAKKAR @ New Delhi

TO nurse the strife-torn Manipur, a committee headed by former judge Gita Mittal was tasked to oversee the measures for relief, rehabilitation, and rebuilding. It has flagged issues in its report to the Supreme Court that need immediate attention. It has also suggested measures for restoring the efficacy of the administration.

The first of the three reports filed by the committee comprising former judges Shalini P Joshi and Asha Menon has highlighted the need for reconstructing essential documents lost by several residents.

The second report suggests upgrading the Manipur Victim Compensation Scheme (MVCS) with the National Legal Services Authority (NALSA) which entitles victims of identified criminal offences to receive compensation.

The third report deals with the appointment of domain experts to facilitate committee's work in the core areas of compensation, violence against women, comprehensive psychological assistance and mental health care, medical care/health, relief camps, and data reporting and monitoring.

The issues which, according to the committee, need immediate attention range from the non-availability of critical supplies of baby food in relief camps to the swift removal of damaged settlements, the inability of persons in camps to reach the mortuaries in Imphal for identification of their deceased kin and failure of students in relief camps to attend their colleges.

Taking note of media reports underscoring the permanent destruction of properties of displaced persons, the committee in its first report, which was filed after conducting a meeting on August 12, has urged the top court to direct Deputy DG, UIDAI and Secretary, Manipur to ensure availability of their Adhaar cards.

Guv summons Assembly session on August 29

A crucial session of Manipur Assembly will be held on August 29 as ethnic tension continues in the state, an official notification said. This comes after the Manipur cabinet, which met on Monday, had decided to convene the Monsoon Session of the Assembly on August 29.

Deliver justice to victims and pay attention to voices of people of the state, says CPM leader

Wagah border inside Manipur: Brinda

PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi

CPM politburo member Brinda Karat spoke to Preetha Nair about her visit to strife-torn Manipur. She was part of a delegation of All India Democratic Women's Association (AIDWA) that visited the state from August 9-11. Excerpts

You visited Manipur and submitted a memorandum to the President. How do you assess the situation?
The situation is extremely grave and there is a dire need for a political solution, which is being ignored by the Centre's double-engine government. The statement of the PM on Independence Day was misleading. It was a message to the nation, but it was misleading regarding Manipur.

The country stands with Manipur, but the Centre does not. It aims to conceal its accountability and the culpability of the state government. Consequently, the lack of accountability of the Central government and the culpability of the state government have led to a situation where a "Wagah border" has been created within an Indian state.

What makes you say that?
Both geographically and literally, a border has been established. On one side, there's the CRPF, followed by a no-man's-land, and then the Army and Assam Rifles. People from the Valley area cannot venture into the hill areas, and vice versa. This situation resembles a border with a neighboring country due to the lack of accountability and the culpability of both the Central as well as state governments.

What kind of political solution would you propose for peace in Manipur?
The Central government and the people of Manipur need to decide on the political solution. However, three steps are crucial for this solution. First, deliver justice to the victims, as peace cannot exist without justice. Second, remove the Chief Minister, who acts as the main barrier to a political resolution. Third, pay attention to the voices of the people and peace engaging in divisive politics.

You visited relief camps. What did you witness there?
The people in relief camps want to return to their homes and resume their normal lives. They are frustrated and distressed, especially children and women who are deeply affected. Children are missing out on education. While arrangements are being made for children in the Valley area to attend school, tribal children in the hill areas lack access to education. It's a shameful situation that no child from any relief camp can attend school. They receive minimal food, just pulses and rice, without any prospects for the future. They want answers about their homes and lives, and they want to go back.

You also met the survivors of sexual assault. What transpired during those meetings?
The survivors are profoundly traumatised and in despair. They know that the perpetrators of the violence against them remain free.

You also met the governor. How did she respond?
The governor expressed concern and obtained details of our suggestions. She apparently dispatched a team to a specific relief camp we mentioned, which was in a dire situation near the border. The team provided some relief and organised water arrangements. Most camps lack water, hygiene, or sanitation, creating challenges, particularly for women. The governor also met the victims and expressed relief that the Supreme Court is taking notice. She refrained from criticizing any government and expressed genuine concern.

You submitted a memorandum to the President...
The President also voiced concern about the relief camps. I briefed her on the details of the sexual assault victims, and she expressed deep sadness upon hearing about it.

Additionally, rations aren't reaching the hill areas due to blockades. The routes through Mizoram take around 15 hours for a truck to cross, even longer during the rainy season. Consequently, prices are exorbitant, and the ration system has collapsed. Unorganized workers are struggling, with reports of many eating only once a day due to lack of work.

You're suggesting that the division between the two communities runs deep...
This division isn't spontaneous; it's a product of the government's narrative and actions. Even now, the way they discuss the tribals is shameful, and they should be ashamed of themselves.

State decides to adopt Bengali lunar calender

The West Bengal government has decided to adopt Poila Baisakh, which marks the start of the Bengali lunar calendar, as West Bengal Day. During the ongoing monsoon session of the Assembly, TMC MLAs would bring a resolution before the House in this regard, said sources in the ruling party. According to TMC sources, the decision has the backing of chief minister Mamata Banerjee as it was her idea to come up with a date to counter the saffron camp's attempt to establish June 20 as the state's foundation day. The Bengal Assembly on June 20, 1947 passed a resolution to divide the Bengal province.

Trams have potential to bag Unesco heritage tag

Kolkata's trams have the potential to bag a Unesco heritage tag and an application should be submitted for the honour, an advisory committee appointed by Calcutta High Court unanimously agreed at its first meeting on Monday. A bench headed by Chief Justice T.S. Shivagnanam had appointed the members of the committee earlier this month. The committee agrees that a mobility plan should be made for the city and tram should be a part of it instead of being isolated from the other modes of public transport. The opinion of police, civic body and PWD will be sought.

Students can help manage traffic: City cops

The Kolkata police have appealed to the authorities of St Xavier's Collegiate School and Birla High School to let students in the senior section help them manage traffic outside their institutions when classes get over in the afternoon. Apart from aiding the police in traffic management, the senior students can help juniors follow traffic norms while crossing over roads to board buses and pool cars, said police. "By volunteering to manage traffic, the students will pick up on the ground rules of road safety in a better way than participating in seminars," said a senior cop. Police have zeroed in on schools in Short Street, Loudon Street, Hungerford Street.

Accused in Nuh violence nabbed after encounter

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Chandigarh

AN alleged accused wanted for the communal clashes in Nuh of Haryana was arrested by the Haryana Police following an encounter from Aravalis near Tauru in Nuh.

Sources said that the accused identified as Aamir was reportedly hiding in the hills after the clashes and allegedly fired at CIA team that went to arrest him on Monday night. The police retaliated and he has been shot in the leg. He was admitted to Nalhar medical college in Nuh.

The police seized a country-made pistol and five cartridges from him after the search. Nuh Crime Branch (CIA) Inspector Amit received information that one of the accused involved in the violence is hiding in the hills and the police team reached the spot.

This is the second such encounter in the area that has taken place in past ten days. The encounter came against the backdrop of the communal clashes that erupted in Nuh when a Vishva Hindu Parishad (VHP) procession was attacked by mobs on July 31. Six people were killed in the clashes.

Why was Ravidas temple razed in Delhi, asks Kharge

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bhopal

BATTLE of election rallies in Madhya Pradesh, between the two main contenders – ruling BJP and the main opposition Congress – has now shifted to the 26 seat-strong Bundelkhand region.

Ten days after Prime Minister Narendra Modi laid foundation of ₹100 crore temple-cum-memorial dedicated to the Bhakti movement mystic poet and social reformer Sant Ravidas in Sagar district, Congress's national president Mallikarjun Kharge launched the opposition party's poll campaign in Bundelkhand region with a mega rally in the same Sagar district on Tuesday.

While accusing PM Modi and BJP of remembering the 14th century saint only for votes during elections, Kharge questioned, "If PM Modi and his party were so committed to Sant Ravidas, why was a temple dedicated to the same saint bulldozed in Delhi in August 2019. From this very stage, I announce that a Sant Ravidas University will be established here once the Congress comes to power in the state."

Focusing on the Bundelkhand region, Kharge accused the Shivraj Singh Chouhan government of misutilizing the Bundelkhand package. "In 2009, owing to the efforts of our leader Rahul Gandhi, our then government at the centre had approved the Bundelkhand package. Had the BJP regime here properly used the package, entire picture of Bundelkhand region would've changed?"

Two days after Home Minister Amit Shah released the Report Card of 18-plus years of BJP rule in MP and dared the Congress to come out with similar report card on decades of Congress regimes, Kharge said, "I've full details of what has been done by our governments in MP and entire country.

"I want to tell, PM Modi, had we not fought freedom for the country, rendered the Constitution, they would have been sitting at home instead of being in power."

Mahadayi sanctuary: Goa to challenge order

NAUSHAD BIJAPUR @ Belagavi

AN order issued by the Bombay High Court in Goa to declare the Mahadayi Wildlife Sanctuary of Goa and the surrounding area as a tiger reserve within a span of next three months will be challenged by the Goa government.

According to the sources, former Advocate General Mukul Rohtagi has been appointed by Goa to challenge the order in Supreme Court.

Sources said the HC directed Goa to initiate necessary measures to draw up a tiger conservation plan within the three months.

The court also directed Goa to settle the rights and claims of ST communities and forest dwellers staying in Mahadayi Wildlife Sanctuary in accordance with the law as expeditiously as possible.

Ever since some of the forest areas were declared as wildlife sanctuaries in Goa, including the Mahadayi Wildlife Sanctuary way back in early 1990s, a large number of forest dwellers are not rehabilitated.

Sources said that it would be difficult for Goa to initiate measures to rehabilitate all of them as per the court orders.

Centre to buy 2L tonnes of onions to placate farmers

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

AMID farmer protests in Maharashtra against a hike in duty on onion exports, the Centre on Tuesday said that it will procure two lakh tonnes of onion at the rate of ₹2,410 per quintal from various centers in the state.

Maharashtra Agriculture Minister Dhananjay Munde after talks with Union Minister of Consumer Affairs, Food and Public Distribution Piyush Goyal in New Delhi over said the procurement will give necessary relief and the government will ensure that the onion prices do not crash.

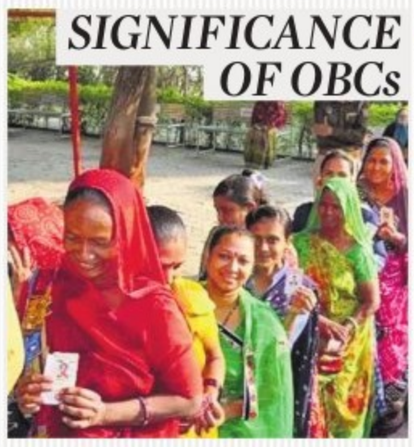
Unimpressed by the government decision, the Opposition demanded immediate withdrawal of hike in export duty and said the government's decision to procure two lakh tonnes will do little as 18 tonnes of the rabi crop is lying in the market.

NDA ally Prahar Janshakti Party MLA Bacchu Kadu, who has also come out in support of farmers, alleged that the government becomes "impotent" when it comes to the farmers' issue as they "fail" to provide required relief whenever the growers are in crisis.

The alliance came out in public over the onion issue on Monday. Meanwhile, onion politics brought the differences between Maha Yuti alliance partners – BJP, Shiv Sena (Shinde) and NCP (Ajit Pawar) – to the public. While CM Eknath Shinde tried to defend his minister Dada Bhuse for his controversial statement, 'not to eat onion if you cannot afford to buy it', deputy CM Ajit Pawar said that they will reprimand the minister and will ask not make such statement.

OBC votes: Cong for caste-based census in Gujarat

DILIP SINGH KSHATRIYA @ Ahmedabad



- In the absence of data, some estimates put OBCs population to at least 40% of state's population
- In 2022 assembly polls, 58 of the 182 BJP candidates were drawn from the OBCs.
- The Congress-backed Swabhiman Dharna demands 27% OBC quota in local self-govt institutions, and equal percentage in allocation of the state budget

THE Gujarat Congress is using the OBC card to get back at the ruling BJP ahead of the Lok Sabha elections. With the demand for a caste-based census in the state, the Congress organized a sit-in at Gandhinagar on Tuesday.

The Congress has invited senior OBC politicians from the ruling BJP to participate in the sit-in to raise awareness about a variety of issues impacting the Other Backward Classes, including the need for reservation in local bodies.

Amit Chavda, state Congress Legislature Party leader, asked a slew of OBC MLAs, MPs, and BJP ministers to attend the Swabhiman Dharna at Satyagrah Chhavni ground in Gandhinagar, via social media.

Chavda, said the party invited political leaders from all communities, all religions and all parties to discuss the various issues impacting the OBCs. "The Swabhiman Dharna raised four demands, including the caste-based census. We have called for the implementation of a 27% OBC reservation in local self-government institutions, a 27% allocation of the state budget for the OBCs, and allotment of seats as per reservation in cooperatives." Said Chavda

The Gujarat Congress has accused the BJP of trying to end the representation of OBCs in local bodies. According to Chavda, the protest has been organized by a non-political outfit, the OBC Anamat Bachao Samiti, which was formed last year to raise the issues concerning the community.

The main contention of the opposition party is the "delay" in making public a report submitted by a commission formed last year by the BJP government to ascertain the nature and implications of backwardness in local bodies to decide on the reservation for the OBCs.

The report was submitted by the commission in April this year. Since the report has not been made public, elections to several local bodies have been put on hold in the state, the Congress alleged.

The OBCs comprise a majority of Gujarat's population. However, there is no official data. Some estimates place them at nearly 40% of the population. In the 2022 assembly elections, 58 of the 182 BJP candidates were drawn from the OBCs. Last July, the state election commissioner (SEC) directed the Gujarat government to dissolve the existing 10% reservation for OBCs and give it to general candidates. The order came as a shock in political quarters.

The SEC directive was in line with a Supreme Court order, asking all states to conduct a survey and submit a report justifying the OBC quota in each seat. After the SEC order, Gujarat Congress leaders alleged negligence by the state government saying the BJP wanted to do away with reservation for backward communities and, as a test case, begin with the local bodies.

The Bhupendra Patel government then hastily formed a commission, headed by Justice K.S. Jhaveri (retired). The commission was asked to submit its report within 90 days, which would have been before the assembly elections last December.

NCPCR pulls up C'garh, seeks chief secy's reply on 39K infant deaths since 2019

EJAZ KAISER @ Raipur

TAKING cognisance of over 39 thousand infant deaths since January 2019 in Chhattisgarh, the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR), had asked the state chief secretary to conduct an inquiry and submit the fact-finding report in seven days.

Seeking action, a delegation of BJP MPs from Chhattisgarh led by the state president Arun Sao, who met the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights chairperson Priyank Kanoongo, held the Congress-led government in the state "responsible for the deaths".

They told Kanoongo that the "alarming figure" has been given by the deputy chief minister T S Singhdeo, who also holds the portfolio of health department, in the state Assembly.

Chhattisgarh has witnessed 23,693 neonatal (below 28 days) and 15,574 child mortality (1-5 years) deaths since January 2019 till 30 June 2023.

The state government gave the figure in a written response to the query raised by the former leader of the opposition and BJP MLA Dharamlal Kaushik during the recent monsoon session of the Assembly.

Kaushik contended that his party has been repeatedly raising the issue but the Congress government kept trying to conceal the facts.

"The figure is quite worrying. Instead of improving the health care delivery system, the state government has turned insensitive owing to which the infants are dying.", the BJP MLA alleged.

'Mortality rate reduced'

As per the Sample Registration System (SRS) of the Registrar General of India, the mortality rate of children below 5 years per 1,000 live births in Chhattisgarh has reduced from 45 in 2018 to 44 in 2019 and then to 41 in 2020. Similarly, the mortality rate of neonates below 28 days decreased from 29 in 2018 to 28 in 2019 and 26 in 2020. The latest report for 2021 not been released.

Countering the allegations, Congress claimed that significant intervention measures have already been put in place that resulted in five year mortality rate and the Maternal Mortality rate decline over the last few years.

As per the Sample Registration System (SRS) of the Registrar General of India, the mortality rate of children below 5 years per 1,000 live births in Chhattisgarh has reduced from 45 in 2018 to 44 in 2019 and then to 41 in 2020.

Similarly, the mortality rate of neonates below 28 days decreased from 29 in 2018 to 28 in 2019 and 26 in 2020. The latest report for 2021 has not yet been released.

"There is a declining trend in the neonatal and infant mortality rate in the state", Job Zachariah, Chhattisgarh Unicef chief told this newspaper.

In November 2021, Singhdeo stated the mission of the state government is to reduce the infant mortality rate by almost 50 per cent and bring it to 20 in 2023.

Real estate tycoon Srettha Thavisin is Thailand's 30th PM

BANGKOK

THAILAND lawmakers approved the leader of one of Thailand's best-known property empires, Srettha Thavisin, as the new PM.

He has been selected prime minister just nine months after joining a political party that champions the poor.

Srettha easily secured a majority across the two houses of parliament to be approved as Thailand's 30th prime minister, despite his Pheu Thai party coming second in the May election.

He sailed past the 374 votes needed for a majority of elected lower house MPs and senators appointed by the last junta, according to an AFP count of votes broadcast live on Parliament TV. Pheu Thai's coalition of around a dozen parties commands 314 of the lower house's 500 seats.

The 61-year-old political newcomer, who exudes the confidence of a seasoned business tycoon, will lead the Pheu Thai party's push to stimulate the economy and bridge one of the world's worst inequality gaps.

On Tuesday, Srettha vowed to "work tirelessly" for the people of the kingdom, soon after his elevation was approved by parliament. "I will try my best and work tirelessly to improve the quality of life for Thai people," Srettha told reporters at his Pheu Thai party's headquarters.

Srettha announced last November that he had joined Pheu Thai party.

Early this year, Srettha stepped down as CEO and president of his family's company, Sansiri, one of Thailand's largest property developers with assets worth over $2.9 billion. He also transferred all of his shares, reportedly valued at more than $35 million, in the company to his daughter.

The recipient of an MBA from Claremont Graduate University in the US, Srettha led Sansiri to a profit of $117 million in 2022.

Thai ex-PM Thaksin makes dramatic return, goes to jail

BANGKOK

THAILAND'S divisive ex-PM Thaksin Shinawatra made a dramatic return home on Tuesday to face an eight-year prison term, just as a party linked to him won a vote in Parliament to lead. The Supreme Court ordered the 74-year-old billionaire to serve eight years on old graft charges, though it is not clear how much time he will serve behind bars.

The move by Thaksin indicates he is hoping that a friendly government will be able to cut short his sentence, although he has said his decision to come back had nothing to do with the Pheu Thai's bid for power. Thaksin's return after 15 years in self-imposed exile was an emotional moment for supporters of the 74-year-old billionaire, who won the loyalty of millions with populist policies that directed attention and funding to the country's largely rural, impoverished north before being removed in a coup.

His re-emergence recalls the years of pitched battles—both figurative and sometimes literal—between his "red shirt" supporters and "yellow shirt" opponents who champion conservative, royalist values.

Hundreds of people gathered outside of the airport early in the morning, donning red clothes and holding signs with welcoming messages. They sang and chanted in anticipation, then raised a raucous cheer when Thaksin appeared at the terminal's door.

Thaksin and parties he backed have tussled with the military—and the conservative elite it represents—for years. His second term as PM was cut short by a coup in 2006, sparking years of deep political divisions.

He was hit with corruption charges, which he dismissed as politically motivated, and was tried and convicted in absentia after he fled into exile. AP

All 8 rescued from cable car dangling over ravine in pakistan

PESHAWAR

PAKISTANI authorities say all eight persons trapped in a cable car suspended high above a canyon have been rescued.

A spokesperson for state-run emergency service says army commandos rescued the six children and two adults after an hourslong operation.

Bilal Faizi said both troops and civilian rescuers took part in the effort. "The rescue operation has been completed. The two adults were the last to be rescued," said Faizi. The eight persons became trapped earlier in the day when one of the cables snapped while the eight passengers were crossing a river canyon in Battagram district in Khyber Pakhtunkhwa. The children, aged between 11 and 15, had been on their way to school.

A cable car carrying six children and two adults dangles above the ground in the remote Battagram district of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa in Pakistan on Tuesday | AP

Helicopters were sent to attempt to pluck the people from the cable car but only after the group spent six hours precariously suspended 350 metres above ground. Because helicopters could not fly after sunset, rescuers shifted from an airborne effort to a risky operation that involved using one cable that was still intact to approach the car with the chairlift.

Footage on TV stations showed a child in a harness being pulled to safety. The commandos' rope could be seen swaying in the wind against the mountainous landscape. As the rescued children were handed over to their families, most burst into tears, said Nazir Ahmed, a senior police officer who was present in the area where the air and ground rescue mission was launched. "Everyone was praying for this moment," he said.

Relatives of those trapped prayed for more than 12 hours while anxiously watching the operation unfold.

Jio Financial shares hit lower circuit for 2nd straight day, m-cap falls to ₹1.51 lakh cr

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @Mumbai

SHARES of Jio Financial Services (JFS) plunged 5% to hit the lower circuit for the second consecutive day, eroding its market capitalisation to ₹1.51 lakh crore from ₹1.70 lakh crore on Monday.

Even as the share fell back-to-back on Monday and Tuesday, the removal of JFS from all key indices of the Bombay Stock Exchange (BSE) and the National Stock Exchange (NSE) was deferred. The stock declined 5% to ₹239.20 apiece on the BSE and ₹236.45 apiece on the NSE on Tuesday.

Since the stock has hit a lower circuit limit for two consecutive days, the index committee has determined to postpone removal of JFS from all S&P BSE indices by another three days, Asia Index Private Limited, a 50-50 partnership between S&P Dow Jones Indices and BSE, said in a notice to BSE on Tuesday.

JFSL will be removed from all the S&P BSE indices effective prior to the opening of trading on Tuesday, August 29, 2023, it announced.

"Should JFSL continue to hit lower circuit on next two days, removal date will be deferred by another three days," the notice added. It further said should JFS not hit lower circuit limit on either of the next two days, but hit the lower circuit limit on the third day, the removal of JFSL from all the S&P BSE indices will be deferred by another three days.

Removal of JFS from all key indices deferred

Even as the share fell back-to-back on Monday and Tuesday, the removal of JFS from all key indices of the BSE and the NSE was deferred. The index committee has determined to postpone removal of JFS from all S&P BSE indices by another three days

Meanwhile, in a positive development for the company, Life Insurance Corporation (LIC) on Tuesday said it has acquired 6.66% stake in JFS. The cost of acquisition of JFS is 4.68% of the pre-demerged cost of Reliance Industries, said the country's largest insurer in a statement. LIC holds a 6.49% stake in Reliance Industries as of June 30, 2023. The BSE Sensex has Jio Financial as the 31st firm and the Nifty has the company as its 51st stock.

JFS was added to key indices on July 20 for a temporary period, to give passive and active funds holding RIL stock, an opportunity to trade in the demerged entity. It was added at a constant price of Rs 261.8, which was derived through a special pre-open session conducted by the exchanges on RIL stock. JFSL shares were listed at ₹265 per share on the BSE and ₹262 per share on the NSE Monday against the discovered price of ₹261.85 apiece.

THAILAND

Q2 GDP GROWTH SLOWS AMID WEAK GLOBAL DEMAND

The gross domestic product (GDP) of Thailand grew at a much slower-than-expected pace in the second quarter due to weak exports and slower investment in tourism. This prompted the government to downgrade its 2023 growth forecast. In the second quarter (April-June period) of 2023, the country's economy grew at 1.8%, which is below the economists' forecast. The Thai government has revised its GDP growth forecast for 2023 to 2.5% to 3.0%. Tourism sector and private consumption have supported the economy amid weak global demand even as exports have been falling since October 2022 on account of a slowdown in China. The economy has been hobbled by falling global growth, led by its main trading partner China and falling investor confidence because of a protracted period without a government following elections in May.

CHINA

CUTS PRIME LOAN RATE TO BOLSTER ECONOMY

In a move to bolster steady growth amid challenges, following a tone-setting meeting in July, the central bank of China on Monday reduced the one-year loan prime rate (LPR) by 10 basis points (bps) to 3.45%, while leaving the five-year LPR at 4.2%. The cut in one-year LPR was the second this year, following a 10 bps cut in June as the Peoples' Bank of China has stepped up policies to stimulate financing demand in the economy, boost investment and employment. The central bank last week had reduced the medium-term lending facility (MLF) by 15 bps to 2.5% in a bid to adjust market liquidity. This move is part of China's effort to make the real economy more sustainable.

TAIWAN

CUTS 2023 GDP GROWTH FORECAST TO 1.61%

Taiwan's gross domestic product (GDP) is expected to grow at a slower rate of 1.61% in 2023 from last year, according to the Directorate General of Budget, Accounting and Statistics of the government. Earlier it had predicted that the economy will expand at 1.45, returning to growth after two quarters in a row of contraction. The country, which is home to major tech companies, has seen its exports declining amid interest rate hikes across the world in response to rising inflation and growing US-China trade tensions. The statistics agency expects the country's exports in 2023 falling 9.51% from last year, compared with a 7.27% decline predicted earlier. The country's GDP is expected to grow 3.32% in 2024, the agency said, offering its first forecast for next year.

GDP growth seen at 8-8.5% in Q1

ICRA expects Q1 GDP growth to be around 8.5%, SBI estimates economic growth at 8.3%

MONIKA YADAV @New Delhi

GDP growth in the first quarter of the current financial year (FY24) might surprise on the higher side as experts estimate the growth to be over 8%.

Various estimates suggest the economy might have grown in the range of 8.2-8.5% in the first quarter (Q1), led by strong public and private investment.

Rating agency ICRA expects the Q1 GDP growth to be around 8.5%, while SBI estimates the growth to be at 8.3%. Rating agency Crisil puts the growth rate at 8.2%. All these estimates are better than RBI's estimate of 8%. The GDP in the first quarter of FY23 grew at 13.1%, and at 6.1% in the fourth quarter. The first quarter GDP growth number will be announced on August 31.

According to a SBI report, India's GDP in the first quarter of FY24 is likely to be 8.3% on account of continued positive activity, government's push for capex, robust quarterly corporate earnings and double-digit credit growth.

The SBI composite leading indicator (CLI) Index (a basket of 43 leading indicators which includes parameters from almost all the sectors) based on monthly data shows continued positive economic activity in the Q1 compared to Q4FY23.

"There has been a surge in capital expenditure in Q1, with the central government spending 27.8% of budgeted, while states at 12.7% of budgeted estimate. States like Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Madhya Pradesh where elections are due have registered capital expenditure growth up to 41%," the SBI report says.

ICRA Ratings expects GDP growth to be 8.5% in April-June owing to base effect, healthy growth in the manufacturing sector and recovery in the services sector.

ICRA estimates the industrial gross value addition (GVA) growth to have risen to 7.3% in Q1 FY24 from 6.3% in Q4 FY23, boosted by the manufacturing sector. It sees manufacturing value addition to grow at 8.0% in the first quarter, benefitting from the uptick in volumes and the expansion in margins across several sectors owing to lower commodity prices.

On the Services sector, ICRA says as many as 11 of the 14 high-frequency indicators pertaining to the services sector recorded a year-on-year growth in Q1, with the pace of expansion ranging from 0.3% (telephone subscribers) to 18.6% (domestic airlines passenger traffic). The SBI report pegs the full year GDP growth to be higher than the RBI's estimate of 6.5%. However, ICRA maintains the FY24 GDP growth at 6%.

Crypto unicorn CoinDCX lays off 12% of workforce

UMA KANNAN @Bengaluru

CRYPTO exchange CoinDCX has fired 12% of its workforce or about 71 employees citing tough macro conditions.

Founders Sumit Gupta and Neeraj Khandelwal said start-ups and businesses globally are going through challenging times, more so in crypto because of the prolonged bear market and impact of TDS on domestic exchanges.

"These factors had a significant impact on our volumes and thus revenues. To adapt, we undertook several proactive measures, including direct cost optimization and investment in automation to drive efficiency and productivity. We also reprioritised certain initiatives/products in line with our long-term business strategy," they said. They added that the current situation demands that they work with a more efficient team structure. The crypto unicorn will also resize certain teams and to steer the business towards a profitable and sustainable growth.

CoinDCX became the first crypto unicorn in India in 2021. It had about 590 employees. Many start-ups have been firing employees due to challenging macro conditions and they also struggle to raise funds. From Coinbase to Kraken, Binance and WazirX, many leading exchanges have fired employees. CoinDCX founders also said that the current market realities compel them to take some tough decisions. "We believe that this is the right thing to do for the business," they said.

'Govt, RBI should be vigilant as food inflation persists'

MONIKA YADAV @New Delhi

FINANCE ministry in its monthly economic review for July said while price pressure on food items is expected to be temporary, the government and the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) must remain vigilant to address the lingering inflationary pressure.

The report said enhanced government capital expenditure in current fiscal year has resulted in increased private investment, with domestic consumption and investment demand projected to drive future growth. In July 2023, the consumer price index-based retail inflation rose to a 15-month high of 7.44%, primarily driven by specific food commodities. However, core inflation remained at a 39-month low of 4.9%.

As per the report, in a bid to curb food inflation, the government has implemented preemptive measures and the arrival of fresh stock, along with the Centre's efforts, will alleviate price pressures in the market soon. It cautioned that global uncertainty and domestic disruptions may keep inflationary pressures elevated in coming months. "While food inflation in July marked the third-highest level since the introduction of the new CPI series in 2014, only 48% of food items experienced inflation rates above 6% and this figure includes 14 food items with inflation in double digits."

Brightcom CEO, CFO can't hold director post: Sebi

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @Mumbai

THE Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) on Tuesday barred Suresh Kumar Reddy, promoter-cum-Chairman and managing director of Brightcom Group, and its chief financial officer Narayan Raju from holding directorial posts until further notice over irregularities in company's preferential share allotments.

In its interim order, the market regulator has also barred them from the securities market until further notice. Apart from the company officials, Sebi has also barred market veteran Shankar Sharma and 21 other individuals and entities from selling their stakes in the company.

The order comes after an investigation by Sebi revealed that the above-mentioned officials of the Hyderabad-based firm were involved in round-tripping of the company's funds to falsely portray receipt of proceeds via preferential allotment of shares.

"The prima facie observations and findings, clearly show the manipulations carried out by BGL (Brightcom Group) and other Noticees, in respect of BGL's preferential allotments, which inter alia involve fictitious receipts of share application money from allottees and siphoning of funds from BGL. However, BGL has brazenly attempted to cover-up its misdeeds by submitting forged and fabricated bank statements to SEBI," said the regulator in its interim order.

It noted that Brightcom claimed to have advanced loans to the tune of ₹824 crore to its subsidiaries but it only transferred ₹350.75 crore and the remaining amount appeared to have siphoned off.

In October last year, Sebi received complaints pertaining to the funds raised by Brightcom Group via preferential issue of shares/warrants during the 2019-21 period.

Sebi alleged Brightcom raised the money through preferential issue to entities that were directly or indirectly connected to it, and that the money raised was given as loans and advances to its subsidiaries.

Cash-strapped Vodafone Idea to pay dues of ₹2,400 crore to govt by September

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

TELECOM service provider Vodafone Idea is planning to pay dues of ₹2,400 to the government by September 2023, according to a report.

The telco recently cleared pending dues of licence fees and spectrum usage charges of about ₹450 crore for the March quarter of 2022-23. Last week, the telco informed in an exchange filing that one of its promoters is ready to infuse ₹2,000 crore in the event of any fund requirement for meeting its impending payment obligation to Department of Telecommunication (DoT).

The company also announced that DoT requested to defer its annual 5G spectrum purchased instalment by a month, and it was ready to pay the interest on the amount. The telco, in a letter to the government, proposed to pay instalment of ₹1,680 crore, which was due on August 17, 2023.

According to the report, the company has sought 30 days to clear the spectrum payment, and the company is also gearing up to clear the licence fee payment by September. The late payment of the spectrum instalment will attract a 15% interest rate on an annual basis.

The company will have to pay nearly ₹1,700 crore for spectrum instalment and about ₹710 crore for licence fee dues with interest. The total amount pending to be cleared by September is over ₹2,400 crore.

In its earnings report for April to June 2023, the company posted a loss of ₹7,840 crore. However, its average revenue per user (ARPU) increased by 3% sequentially to ₹139. The company stated that its 4G customer base grew from 122.6 million to 122.9 million compared to the previous quarter. During this quarter, the company lost 4.5 million mobile subscribers, bringing its user base to 221.4 million as of June 2023.

Aeroflex IPO subscribed by 4.3 times

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @Chennai

AEROFLEX INDUSTRIES PRIVATE LIMITED's initial public offering was subscribed 4.32 times in a few hours after it hit the market on Tuesday.

According to data from BSE at 5 pm, 10,03,75,080 shares were bidded against 2,32,17,667 shares offered. Retail investors oversubscribed 4.17 times more. Qualified Institutional Buyers (QIB) portion has been subscribed 1.07 times and non-institutional investors (NIIs) 8.96 times over issued shares.

The company's IPO opened on Tuesday morning Tuesday (August 22) and closing date is on Thursday (August 24) for an issue size of Rs 351 crore. The price band has been fixed at Rs 102 to Rs 108 per share and lot size is 130 shares and multiples thereof. Retail investors can apply up to 14 lots at the upper price band. IPO entails fresh issue of equity shares of Rs 162 crores and offer of sale upto 1.75 crores equities by promoter group and promoter shareholders. The Mumbai-based company backed by investors such as Ashish Kacholia and Jagdish Master, is involved in manufacturing of metalic hose and flow solution products. It exports products to more than 80 countries. The company has registered a revenue growth of 37% CAGR in the last three years.

Maruti Suzuki's Baleno, Brezza, Grand Vitara to undergo crash tests

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

AS the government on Tuesday introduced the much-awaited Bharat New Car Assessment Programme (Bharat NCAP), India's largest carmaker Maruti Suzuki said it will initially provide Baleno, Brezza and Grand Vitara models for crash tests.

"Any car that is launched in India follows the mandatory safety standards set by the government and is therefore safe. For consumers seeking extra safety or manufacturers offering extra safety features, Bharat NCAP system is an authentic and objective rating system to empower the customer to make an informed choice," said Rahul Bharti, executive officer, corporate affairs, Maruti Suzuki India.

It will be important to see how much MSIL scores in the Bharat NCAP as the company models have scored low ratings in the Global NCAP tests. One of MSIL's most selling cars, WagonR, had scored 1 star (out of five stars) while other models such as AltoK10, Swift and S-Presso have ratings of 2 and 3 stars.

Besides MSIL cars, Hyundai Motor India (HMIL) models have also received underwhelming safety ratings in the Global NCAP with most models scoring two and three stars.

"We welcome Bharat NCAP safety initiative by government of India and believe this effort will raise safety standards, empower consumers with vital information, and make Indian roads safer for all," said Unsoo Kim, Managing Director and CEO, Hyundai Motor India. The Korean carmaker will supply three models initially for crash tests.

For consumers seeking safety or carmakers offering extra safety features, Bharat NCAP is authentic rating system to empower customers

Rahul Bharti, executive officer, corporate affairs, Maruti Suzuki

Mahindra & Mahindra and Tata Motors, the two homegrown companies that have received high ratings in Global NCAP, welcomed the new initiative but did not say which models will be sent for the new tests. Tata Motors' Nexon and Punch, and Mahindra's XUV300, Scorpio-N and XUV700 have a five-star Global NCAP safety rating. Mahindra's popular Thar has received four stars. Bharat NCAP has already received requests to test 30 models from automakers ahead of its launch on October 1st, 2023z.

Coal stock sufficient to meet demand: Minister

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

AS the power demand touched a new high in August due to faulty monsoon, coal minister Prahald Joshi on Tuesday assured that there is sufficient stock of coal in the country.

The minister, in a tweet said nearly 80 million tonne (MT) coal is available with thermal power plants and Coal India Limited.

"In view of the surge in power demand across the country, took stock of coal production and offtake in a meeting with senior officials of the coal ministry. The country has sufficient coal stock, almost 80 MT coal is available with thermal power plants and Coal India," tweeted the minister on Tuesday.

During the meeting, the minister also deliberated on boosting coal transportation via the rail-sea-rail route.

According to the Grid Controller of India, the maximum power demand met on August 21, 2023, is 205981 MW and the peak shortage was 9109 MW.

However, the maximum demand met on August 17 was 234 GW, the highest ever on record. In May 2023, the maximum demand met at 221.7 GW.

The reason for the jump in power demand in August is sultry weather and requirement for irrigation as some parts received less rainfall.

According to the government data, coal stocks at power plants declined to 32 million tonne from 34.9 million tonne in the first 20 days of August.

Guardiola to miss two games after surgery

Pep Guardiola will miss Manchester City's next two matches after a "routine operation" on his back Tuesday. City said their manager had been suffering from "severe back pain for some time" and flew out to Barcelona for "emergency" yet "routine" surgery. The Spanish boss is expected to miss the club's matches against Sheffield United & Fulham.

'Pragg extremely focussed'

Coach Ramesh speaks about the 18-year-old's work ethics, how they stay in touch & more...

INDRANEEL DAS @Chennai

R Praggnanandhaa is on a roll at the World Cup in Baku. He drew against World No 1 Magnus Carlsen on Tuesday and is set to play the second classical game on Wednesday. Miles away, in Chennai, his coach RB Ramesh has been following each and every move of his online. During a conversation ahead of the semifinals against Fabio Caruana, which Pragg won, he revealed how they keep in touch, what he thought when he met the 18-year-old for the first time and more. Excerpts from concluding part...

Indian Grandmaster R Praggnanandhaa and Norway's Grandmaster and World No. 1 player Magnus Carlsen during the first game of the final match on Tuesday

On what he saw in Pragg when he first came to him

When we started working probably nine or 10 years ago. He was already a good player. He was, I believe, world Under-8 champion. But U-8, generally there is not much competition, but he was also eight, like every other child. And back then his (elder) sister (Vaishali) was stronger than Pragg. She had probably like 200 or 300 points above Pragg. They learned their chess from Bloom Chess Academy before coming to me. The academy has done a really good job. One thing they have is right work ethics. I would say that their heart was in the game. They both really loved chess and they both were extremely ambitious. They wanted to be the world champion and they were also very talented. But talent is something which is available in abundance. It's not such a rare phenomenon, but this passion, extraordinary passion, the hard-working ability and they're willingness to pay the price (for a bigger prize) is great. Usually what happens, when people pursue excellence in some field, they are focussed largely on the target. They want to get it by any means.

They miss out on the learning process. To learn effectively, they have to do certain things, they have to go through a process and the process is more important than the outcome. If they go through the process in the proper way, they will make a significant improvement in their strength, which will guarantee good results in the long run. They were very focussed in the process from a young age. No wonder they are doing so well.

On Pragg's show in WC

We are in touch. I was doing a camp in Sweden with the former world champion (Magnus) Carlsen's club. I'm working with them to create a chess ecosystem and a training culture in the Nordic countries. So we have camps every few months and this camp was arranged months in advance, so I couldn't cancel it. And I also tell Pragg to be very independent and that he should not be dependent on anyone for his chess preparations during major tournaments. And the last two years, we have worked a lot in this direction. Now he's very independent and can take care of himself, he can take major decisions like which openings I should play. What should be my approach, how to manage his time. We keep in touch through Whatsapp.

On the impact of screen time on the game of chess?

Very much. I have worked with children years ago. I worked with some of the players who are seniors nowadays. I have seen the attention span of the children declining over a period of time. The attention span of the current generation is probably 20% of what it was in a child of the same age 10-15 years ago. They are getting access to a lot of screen time. Be watching serials on TV, movies and so on. I've seen many chess players who are addicted to video games and very smart who could have become very strong players, but because they could not restrain or could not control their cravings they cave in.

Is there any age a player peaks in chess?

This is very hard to say in chess because in a physical sport, every human being around the world beats anywhere from the world. When we are young teenagers, our muscles are not strong, our bones have not grown fully. When you are young, the strength is not there, the power is not there and the experience is not there. That comes probably after 18-plus. In chess, I started at 12. I became an International Master at 19. It was at that time the youngest in India...They used to say 'he became an IM at such a young age.' People were doing it probably in their early twenties and they're becoming Grandmasters after they are 30. But now we see youngsters like Pragg and D Gukesh, they became IMs at the age of 10. When Pragg became an IM, it was the world record. And he became a GM at the age of 12, which was the second youngest in the world.

Within a few months, Gukesh broke both records and another child from the US broke the record. They also have shown that excellence is possible at a very young age in chess because you don't need the physical strength... just the intellectual strength is required and they have shown that the young human brain is very powerful and as good, if not better than that at a very young age. I believe like, probably around five or six would be a good time to start.

Starting very young, is it possible that Pragg may lose interest in the sport by 30?

Yes, it is very much possible. If you eat idly every day for breakfast, you will soon start hating it. It is possible because he has been playing chess from a very young age. He has been practicing a lot. He is breathing chess, basically eating chess, sleeping chess, walking chess. So it is possible. When you have devoted yourself to one thing, how long can you do that? I'm also curious. I just hope we can continue because we can see Carlsen, who is the current world champion, he's 32, and he's already lost interest in standard time control. He said like, he is playing just because he has never won the World Cup. It's like one box missing from his house. He hates playing in standard time format. Being the world champion, he wants to play the shorter time approach. That's what chess has done to him. So everyone reacts in their own way and I hope Pragg can withstand this longer.

Bajrang & Deepak to train abroad skipping Worlds trials

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chennai

MISSION Olympic Cell (MOC) clearance to Bajrang Punia and Deepak Punia's proposals for foreign training on Tuesday has finally put an end to suspense surrounding the duo's participation in the World Championships selection trials. The trials to pick the national team for the Worlds, which is also the first qualifier for the 2024 Paris Olympics, are scheduled on August 25 and 26. Competitions in women's wrestling and men's Greco-Roman will be held on Day 1 followed by trials in men's freestyle the next day. The championships is scheduled in Belgrade, Serbia from September 16 to 24.

"On 18th August Bajrang's proposal to train in Kyrgyzstan from 21st August to 28th September (39 days) along with coach, strength & conditioning expert, physiotherapist and sparring partner was put up for discussion in a wrestling sub-committee meeting, where Olympian Deepak Punia's proposal for training camp in Russia from 23rd August to 28th September (35 days) along with his soach & physiotherapist was also discussed," read a statement issued by the Sports Authority of India (SAI).

The statement further said that the committee though gave in-principal approval to the duo's proposal but asked them to provide a fitness certificate before going abroad along with a justifiable reason for not participating in senior Worlds trials.

"Following this, Bajrang vide email on August 19th gave his reasons for not participating in World Championships trials. Additionally, medical fitness assessment was conducted by SAI on August 21st at NCOE Sonepat wherein he has been declared fit to play/train in competitive sports. Meanwhile, Deepak has also submitted his response and medical certificate on August 22nd. As the two have submitted the requisite documents, SAI has now requested the athletes to provide the dates for their travel. The tickets for the same will be booked on the first available flight as soon as their response is received," said the statement.

The SAI's announcement might have cleared the air regarding their participation at the Worlds trials but it has certainly dented hopes of Vishal Kaliraman competing at the Asian Games. Notably, it was Vishal, who won the Asian Games selection trials in the 65kg, but the ad-hoc committee running the sport in the country had given direct entry to Bajrang in the weight category. Vishal and his family have been contesting the decision and even organised two khaps to garner support. They have also called a mahapanchayat in Jind, Haryana on August 24 and invited Bajrang.

"It was never about Worlds trials. We have been demanding trials for Asian Games. If Vishal wins the Worlds trials, he will compete there that's loud and clear. But why Vishal is not in the team despite winning trials for the quadrennial event? The mahapanchayat is on. Heads of all khaps have been invited for it. They will decide on the issue," Surender Kaliraman, one of the organisers, told this daily.

Meanwhile, Harender Punia, Bajrang's brother, though expressed unawareness over the latter's decision of not competing in the Worlds trials but said that he is willing to attend the mahapanchayat subject to his engagements on that day.

Sindhu makes early exit from world meet

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chennai

PV SINDHU is considered to be one of the players who thrives during big events. The World Championships, considered as tough as the Olympics by many, is one of her favourite hunting grounds, having won an impressive five medals (1G, 2S, 2B).

Coming into this year's Worlds in Denmark, Sindhu had struggled to find that distinct composure, which has helped her record many historic performances. But given the 28-year-old's track record in the said marquee event, there were hopes that she could step up for the nth time and regain her lost touch. However, her journey in the marquee event was a brief one as she lost her first match against a familiar rival in the form of Nozomi Okuhara in 44 minutes on Tuesday. This latest setback just highlights her rough patch, which is threatening to be a bigger issue. She'll be intent on turning things around soon. Playing against Okuhara, Sindhu was clearly lacking ideas and making unforced errors. Okuhara made it hard for Sindhu with her nimble footwork across the court. She defended stoutly and also managed to land some fine winners on both sides of the court.

After conceding the first game, Sindhu did give indications of a strong response and got off to a flier, reeling off nine consecutive points. However, her joy didn't last long. Okuhara cut the gap in no time. Apart from her fighting qualities, that phase highlighted Sindhu's lack of authority in her game. She just didn't seem to have proper answers as Japanese continued to bridge the gap before taking control of the proceedings. Okuhara was clearly playing with confidence while Sindhu seemed defeated already. In the end, Okuhara closed the match 21-14, 21-14.

This is the eighth time that the double Olympic medallist has crashed out in the Round of 32 this year on the BWF World Tour. For someone who's India's lone hope in the women's singles (as things stand), her form, or lack thereof, is a massive concern.

New coach Hafiz Hashim has a massive task ahead of him as he looks to stop the rot.

Lakshya, Prannoy advance

Meanwhile, Lakshya Sen and HS Prannoy had no problems dispatching their respective opponents on the day in the men's singles section. Sen defeated Korea's Jeon Hyeok Jin 21-11, 21-12 in 36 minutes.

Prannoy, the No 9 seed, beat Indonesia's Chico Aura Dwi Wardoyo. Both the Indians have been the best performers for the country in the singles section in 2023 and they'll be hoping to go deep.

Shooting: Adarsh misses out on quota by whisker

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Chennai

IT was a case of so near, yet so far for shooter Adarsh Singh. The young 25m rapid fire pistol shooter, who was among leaders after Stage 1 of qualification in the ongoing ISSF World Championships in Baku, was in contention to make the cut for the finals, where he could get the all-important Olympic quota for India. However, the shooter missed out on both by the finest of margins. Some below-par scores in the middle and last part of Stage 2 eventually cost the Indian shooter.

Denys Kushnirov of Ukraine finished with a tally of 583 to become the sixth and final qualifier. Adarsh had the same tally but he had lesser inner 10s (speak about precision). What was more agonising for Adarsh was the fact that another shooter beat him by the criterion. Peeter Olesk of Ukraine, who finished eighth; a spot ahead of Adarsh, took the fourth and final quota. Other quota earners were China, Japan and Ukraine. Vijayveer Sidhu (577) and Anish (575), the other Indians who were part of the event, finished 25th and 32nd, respectively.

It's the second time a pistol shooter from the country has missed out by a whisker. Pistol shooters from India are yet to win a single Olympic quota. Rhythm Sangwan had done well to reach the women's 25m pistol final before finishing eighth to return empty-handed.

India have won a total of three quotas so far in this ongoing World Championships. Trap shooters will be looking to add to that tally on Wednesday. Overall, India have secured six Olympic quotas so far.

Can India sweep series?

Having won the first two T20Is, Jasprit Bumrah & Co will be looking to complete a 3-0 sweep against Ireland on Wednesday. A look...

CHANCE FOR TILAK TO FIRE AGAIN

He might have gotten his ODI call-up, but Tilak Varma hasn't made runs this series. On an optional training day, he was working with Sitanshu Kotak, who is the head coach for the series, on his mindset and what he needs to have a look at ahead of the final match. Can he make a mark on Wednesday?

WILL JITESH GET A GO?

With the series won, it might be a good chance for India to get a look at their bench. Even more so considering the Asia Cup squad is already picked and Sanju Samson is in the reserves. Will the team management take a plunge and see if they can give Jitesh Sharma a go in the third T20I?

HOSTS SEEK SOLACE

While they have had their share of moments during the first two matches, Ireland haven't been able to capitalise on the momentum and stretch it through the course of 40 overs. Paul Stirling and Co will do just that as they will be looking to avoid a 3-0 defeat and finish the series on a positive note.

Indian jr women's team beats Spain

DUSSELDORF: The Indian junior women's hockey team put up a spirited performance to beat Spain 2-1 at the 4-Nations Tournament here on Tuesday. Annu (21st minute) and Sakshi Rana (47th) scored a goal each for India. For Spain, Lima Teresa (23th) was on target. The first quarter started with the action unfolding on both ends of the pitch. India got off the blocks with the intent to attack in the first quarter but Spain dished out solid defence.

Arsenal sink Palace to extend perfect start

LONDON: Arsenal shrugged off Takehiro Tomiyasu's red card to extend their perfect start to the Premier League season as Martin Odegaard sealed a 1-0 victory against Crystal Palace on Monday. Odegaard's second-half penalty at Selhurst Park put Arsenal on course for their second successive win. But Mikel Arteta's side had to dig deep to preserve the points after Japan defender Tomiyasu was controversially sent off.

Durand Cup: Hyderabad overcome Army FC 3-0

GUWAHATI: Aaren D'Silva scored a hat-trick to guide Hyderabad FC (HFC) to a comfortable 3-0 win over Nepal's Tribhuvan Army FC (TAFC) in the final Group E game of the Durand Cup football tournament here on Tuesday. The Nizams will finish second in the group behind Chennaiyin FC, who topped with a 100 per cent record and nine points.

TRIUMPHANT TURNAROUND

Sha'Carri Richardson caps comeback by winning 100-metre title at marquee meet

EDDIE PELLS @Budapest

TRACK, and fame, can be brutal games. Nobody felt that more over the past two years than American sprinter Sha'Carri Richardson. On a sultry Monday night a half-world away from where her problems began, the 23-year-old earned a gold medal at World Championships in the biggest 100-meter race this side of the Olympics.

Her victory, in 10.65 seconds over Jamaicans Shericka Jackson and five-time world champion Shelly-Ann Fraser-Pryce, capped a comeback two years in the making and made good on the mantra she's been reciting all year — and repeated yet again after her latest victory: "I'm not back. I'm better."

Two summers ago after Olympic trials in Eugene, Oregon, Richardson's road to the Tokyo Games was roadblocked by a positive test for marijuana. Her name turned into a litmus test in a wide-ranging debate about race, fairness, the often-impenetrable anti-doping rulebook and, ultimately, about the sometimes razor-thin line between right and wrong. Richardson said she soaked it all in, surrounded herself with supporters, tried to drown out the rest. "I would say 'never give up,'" she said when asked what message this victory sent. "Never allow media, never allow outsiders, never allow anything but yourself and your faith define who you are. I would say 'Always fight. No matter what, fight.'"

Jyothi fails to qualify

India's Jyothi Yarraji couldn't make it past the fheats after she finished with a time of 13:05 to finish seventh (only the top four advance) in the fourth heat. The 23-year-old, who has a personal best of 12:78, had been billed as one of the athletes to look forward to at the event.

For this victory, in a field featuring four of the eight fastest sprinters in history, she fought. She fought when the vagaries of the track rulebook placed her in the so-called "Semifinal of Death," paired against Jackson and Marie-Josée Ta Lou, who came in ranked fifth and eighth all-time, in a race where only the top two finishers were guaranteed spots in the final.

In that semifinal, Richardson got off to a wretched start and had to rally from seventh to finish third in 10.84. A mere 70 minutes later, she was lining up on the edge of the track in Lane 9 for the gold-medal. Even though she had the third-slowest start in the field, nobody got too far ahead. In the end, it was a race between her and Jackson. Jackson crossed and, unable to track what Richardson was doing so far on the scoreboard as though she might have won. But Richardson beat her by .07 seconds, Fraser-Pryce by .12 and Ta Lou by .16.

Gold for Stahl

Olympic champion Daniel Stahl won a second world title in the men's discus on Monday. The Swede threw a championship record of 71.46m. Kristjan Ceh took silver with 70.02m while Lithuania's 19-year-old Mykolas Alekna claimed bronze with 68.85m. Meanwhile, Grant Holloway became the second athlete after Greg Foster to claim three consecutive world 110m hurdles titles. AP

A NEW PATH-BREAKING STUDY BRIDGES MACHINE-LEARNING AND NEUROSCIENCE TO EXPOSE POTENTIAL ROLE OF BRAIN CELLS IN IMPROVING AI SYSTEMS, WHILE IMPROVING UNDERSTANDING OF OUR BRAIN'S WORKING

MAKING AI SYSTEMS BIOLOGICALLY PLAUSIBLE

In a revolutionary development that could see biologics cross-breed with artificial intelligence (AI) to better understand the brain as well as improve AI systems with brain cells and neurons, researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), the MIT-IBM Watson AI Lab, and Harvard Medical School are at work trying to make artificial intelligence models biologically plausible.

The new study, attempting to bridge neuroscience and machine learning, offers insights into the potential role of astrocytes in the human brain, according to MIT News, citing the researchers' paper "Building transformers from neurons and astrocytes", published in open-access format by the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences (PNAS).

The revolutionary aspect involves implementing a powerful artificial intelligence model called transformer in the brain using networks of neurons and other brain cells called astrocytes.

A transformer is a more powerful neural network model that can achieve unprecedented performance, including generating text from prompts with a near-human accuracy. It was discovered six years ago and forms the basis of AI systems like ChatGPT.

The researchers, in the study, have come up with a hypothesis that could explain how a transformer can be built using biological elements in the brain, and suggest that a biological network of neurons and astrocytes could perform the same core computation as a transformer.

The hypothesis exposes the potential of future neuroscience research into how human brains work, while also help machine-learning researchers explain why transformers are so successful across a diverse set of complex tasks.

MIT News quotes Dmitry Krotov, a research staff member at the MIT-IBM Watson AI Lab and senior author of the research paper: "The brain is far superior to even the best artificial neural networks that we have developed, but we don't really know exactly how the brain works. There is scientific value in thinking about connections between biological hardware and large-scale artificial intelligence networks. This is neuroscience for AI and AI for neuroscience."

Transformers are found to be operating in a different manner as compared to artificial neural network models. According to the researchers, a recurrent neural network compares each word in a sentence with the previous words to determine what the next word would be; but a transformer compares all the words in the sentence at once to generate a prediction. This is a process called self-attention.

According to Krotov, for self-attention to work, the transformer must keep all the words ready in some form of memory, which is biologically not possible in a brain due to the way neurons communicate. Neurons communicate one-on-one, but for self-attention to be realised, there needs to be a third neuron or brain cell to get involved to make it a three-way communication.

This is where the researchers are considering using the brain cells called astrocytes. Falling back on an earlier and a different type of machine-learning model called Dense Associated Memory, the researchers learnt that self-attention is possible in the human brain by involving three neurons.

The researchers' hypothesis targets using astrocytes to play the role of the third neuron, and they are confident of realising transformer-like functions in the brain. There is a reason for considering astrocytes: during communication between two neurons, they send chemicals called neurotransmitters across the synapse that connects one neuron with the other. In this process, often an astrocyte gets connected by wrapping its tentacle around the synapse to create a tripartite (three-part) synapse. One astrocyte may form millions of tripartite synapses. And non-neuronal cells like astrocytes are abundant in the brain, playing their role in physiological processes.

Analysis showed the researchers that their hypothetical biophysical neuron-astrocyte network matches a transformer. According to MIT News, the researchers conducted numerical simulations by feeding images and paragraphs of text to transformer models and comparing the responses to those of their simulated neuron-astrocyte network. Both responded to the prompts in similar ways, confirming their theoretical model. The researchers now plan to convert theory into practice.

PLAYING THE ROLE OF THE THIRD NEURON

The researchers' hypothesis targets using astrocytes to play the role of the third neuron, and they are confident of realising transformer-like functions in the brain. There is a reason for considering astrocytes: during communication between two neurons, they send chemicals called neurotransmitters across the synapse that connects one neuron with the other

OUT OF THIN AIR

A SOLUTION FOR DRINKING WATER CRISIS FROM ATMOSPHERE

Researchers have finally found a solution that could keep an impending drinking water crisis at bay. They have found a process to extract water from atmospheric water vapour even in the driest and most arid regions of the world. Researchers from the Division of Environmental Science & Engineering at Pohang University of Science and Technology (POSTECH) and University of California Berkeley, have successfully harvested atmospheric water by using ambient sunlight in a place like Death Valley, a desert valley in Eastern California, in northern Mojave Desert, USA, where temperatures can be 40 degrees C at midnight, soaring up to 57 degrees C in the day, and humidity below 7 per cent. And they have done it without polluting the environment — no carbon footprint — signifying a breakthrough and a promise of tackling the water crisis in future. The researchers devised a water harvesting device based on the design of metal-organic frameworks (MOFs), which are porous materials with microscoping holes not bigger than two nanometres. This device was capable of absorbing water from the atmosphere at night and condensing the same into potable water using the harsh sunlight during daytime.The team also collected atmospheric water using the same process in Berkeley with higher humidity levels. The device harvested 285 gms per Kg of MOF of water in Berkeley and 210 gms in Death Valley — twice more than that collected using conventional water harvesters, which could function only in highly humid regions. What's significant is that the team's harvester extracted water without generating any carbon footprint even in extremely hot and dry weather conditions at about 60 deg C and average night humidity of 14%. This process has emerged as the most promising method of water extraction, considering desalination of seawater is a highly energy-consuming process with very high costs.

HOW IT WORKS

BREAKING THE CODE OF THE MODERN MARKETPLACE

HRITHIK KIRAN BAGADE

TODAY, digital payments are the mainstay between purchase and sale in India. Having the right amount of currency notes or small change, and needing to hand out hard cash in exchange for goods and services, have all but diminished in the digital marketplace.

A most familiar sight at almost every point of sale, from a small roadside pushcart to an upmarket boutique, restaurant, hospital, or vehicle dealership, is the convenient use of a QR code. Each of the aforementioned businesses and others place these codes at their locations in the form of wall stickers or little tabletop standees, which are scanned by customers to make payments that are seamless, paperless, touch-free and stress-free, completely avoiding the embarrassing scene of 'Don't have change'.

Invented by Japanese engineer Masahiro Hara in 1994,

QR code was originally meant for tracking vehicles and parts moving down the assembly line. It, however, captured the imagination of the global public after the advent of the smartphone. In India, QR code became commonplace in 2016, largely around the demonetisation period. It proved to be as much a boon for ecommerce, as much for the unorganised sector.

What's in the code?

Simply put, a QR or 'quick response' code is a two-dimensional scannable barcode that stores data, which can be read by smartphones and other devices (which have in-built scan capability through a camera). It consists of black squares and dots, over a white background, representing different pieces of information. Each dot represents a 'one', while a blank a 'zero' in binary code. The patterns encode sets of numbers, letters or both, including URLs. At its smallest, this grid is 21 rows by 21 columns, while at its biggest it is 177 rows by 177 columns.

Meanwhile, a QR reader can identify a standard QR code based on the three large squares outside the code itself. Once these squares are identified, the reader knows that everything contained within is a QR code. The reader then analyses the code by breaking the entire data down to a grid.

QR codes are commonly used to share links to websites and contact information, besides for making payments, while also unlocking links to videos and other information.

Practically, most online data, including social media profiles, can be shared/protected through the integration of a QR code, which works by encoding data in a machine-readable format.

When scanned, its unique pattern translates into human-readable data, allowing the information delivery or transaction to happen in seconds. While the most common mode to decipher a QR code is a smartphone, there could be devices lacking this capability. In that case, specialised apps can be downloaded to assist in cracking these codes.

Adityakasyap Badri, member of the Carnatic progressive rock band Agam, speaks about their growing relationship with the local audience, how the city inspires music and simplifying Carnatic music in their own way

CONFLUENCE OF WORLDS

TUNIR BISWAS

THERE have been many bands in the Bengaluru rock scene, but none quite like Agam. Formed in 2003, they are known for their trademark style of blending Carnatic music and progressive rock – two highly technical musical genres in their respective fields. The city-based band recently had their concert at GYLT, Hennur, as part of their Onwards & Upwards Tour.

Their bass guitarist and backing vocalist Adityakasyap Badri says performing in the city. "It is always a wonderful experience to perform in front of a home crowd. We have noticed our relationship with the audiences in two phases. There's phase 1 – the first album, and phase 2 – the second album. The relationship with the audiences changed considerably between these two projects. In our first album, we almost introduced Carnatic progressive rock to poeple, so there was a bit of a learning curve with the audiences. But in phase 2, the genre was very well established, and our style had become popular. We are on a mission to demystify Carnatic music's 'too complex' image, so we work at simplifying the ragas and the compositions," he says.

Both progressive rock and Carnatic music have elements of storytelling in them, so how does that guide them? "The very word 'Agam' means the inner self in Tamil and Sanskrit. Our band's name signifies our inner self as musicians and the emotions we want to bring out through our music. Therefore, storytelling is an essential part of Agam's music. We keep switching though. Certain songs need the storytelling in more of the heavier progressive rock style, while some would need more on the Carnatic side," shares the bassist of the band known for songs like Mist of Capricorn and Kooth (Koothu) Over Coffee.

Badri feels something about this city inspires music. "Most of the band members are from Bengaluru. This is where we have composed and recorded most of our music. We are always humbled by the fact that, for many in the new generation, their exposure to Carnatic music comes from us. That really gives us a sense of purpose and drives us," he explains, adding that among the up-and-coming bands, they are big fans of Pineapple Express.

Presently, the band is working on their third studio album. "We are in the process of recording, composing, mixing and mastering it. Hopefully, the next time we are in the city, we will be able to perform some of our newer songs as well," he concludes.

The French Connection

The upcoming Indo-French International Festival commemorates five decades of friendly relations between India and France and highlights culture of both countries

EXPRESS FEATURES

THIS weekend, Alliance Française de Bangalore is showcasing the rich traditions of art and culture of India and France in a three-day-long event. The Indo-French International Fest, which is a preview to the larger festival scheduled to be held in October, will feature film screenings, art exhibitions, music and dance performances and much more.

"It's a celebration of the arts and culture of both nations. In a sense, the festival commemorates the more than 50 years of friendly relations between India and France," says Ravindra Kumar, an architect and chief convener of the Indo-French International Festival.

The festival will kick off with a curtain-raiser performance by the French band Midnight Poppies on August 25 and will conclude on August 27. "We also have the Indo-French international fashion show, a wildlife exhibition by a French photographer and we have some amazing artworks by Indo-French artists, all with some connection to France," says Kumar adding that the fest will also host a career fair for people who would like to go and study in France.

The highlights of the three-day fest will be a curated selection of French and regional Indian films. "The film festival opens with the Kannada film Edegarike by Sumana Kittur.

A still from Edegarike

Apart from a few French films, we have decided to focus on regional Indian films, from Malayalam, Tamil, Telugu and Kannada industries. We have some national award winning films, around 12 of them," Kumar adds.

Meanwhile, city-based foundation Art Mantram Trust is also holding an exhibition of curated artworks by artists with some connection to France. "We have works by Sujata Bajaj, Paresh Hazra, Gurudas Shenoy, Ramesh Terdal, Rajesh Baderia and more," says Jija Harisingh, founder, Art Mantram, adding that the trust will also hold a silent auction of artworks by artist Kantharaj.

Harisingh says the festival will be a transformational experience for visitors, offering them unique perspectives. "Cultural exchange is not only an exposition of culture, but also offers fresh perspectives that transform individuals. Different sensibilities and energies have the power to change how we view the world. France, especially Paris, has been the centre of art and art patronage for centuries. Some of the best artists in the world worked in the city, creating some truly amazing works of art," she adds.

FIT BIT

ANJALI MUDRA IN URDHVA HASTA PRAPADA KALYASANA

In Sanskrit, 'anjali mudra' means salutation seal, 'urdhva' means upward, 'hasta 'means hands, 'prapada' means tiptoes, 'kali' refers to the Hindu goddess, Kali, and 'asana' means posture.

STEPS

- First, start in Tadasana (Mountain Pose), and bring your hands to rest on your hips.
- Then, keep your feet wide apart, about four feet in distance.
- You can turn your toes out slightly, pointing to the corners of the mat.
- Exhale, bend your knees directly over your toes, and lower your hips into a squat.
- Bring your thighs parallel to the floor, but don't force yourself into a squat.
- Then, raise your arms above your head, and keep them in Anjali Mudra.
- Tuck your tailbone in slightly and press your hips forward as you draw your thighs back.
- Place your knees in line with your toes and soften your shoulders.
- Look straight while in this position.
- Hold this posture for up to 10 breaths.
- To release, slowly bring back your hands to your hips. Keeping your spine upright, inhale, press firmly into your feet and straighten your legs.
- Keep your feet together and come back to Tadasana and then relax.

BENEFITS

- It widens the uterus and further helps during pregnancy.
- Strengthens the spine, hips, calves, quads, lower back and the thigh muscles.
- Massages the organs in the abdomen, particularly the kidneys, the ovaries, urinary system and the prostate gland.
- Associated with the Svadhisthana (sacral) Chakra, located below the navel.
- Helps to broaden the chest and correct the postural defects.
- Enhances the functioning of organs in the thorax and improves respiration.
- Helpful in relieving menstrual pain and cramps.
- It helps to improve fertility.
- Energises the body, relieves stress and gives a general sense of well-being.
- It helps to reduce arthritis and sciatica.
- Stimulates the pelvis, respiratory and cardiovascular systems.
- Improves the alignment, posture, focus, awareness and builds confidence.

LIMITATIONS

People who are suffering from hip, ankle, wrist, knee injuries or shoulder problems should avoid this.

While widening the legs, don't go beyond your limit.

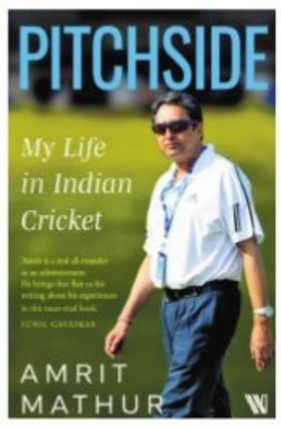
...I was doubtful whether people would be interested in knowing what I have to say. But I realised that I had a lot of information that could offer a different perspective
Amrit Mathur, author

BEYOND BOUNDARY LINES

Long-time Indian cricket administrator Amrit Mathur, who recently launched his book Pitchside: My Life in Indian Cricket, shares with CE anecdotes about some prominent personalities in Indian cricket

DESE GOWDA



Over the last 30 years, Indian cricket has undergone monumental changes, whose outsized impact has affected the game across the world. From the introduction of DRS (Decision review system) in 1992, to the Indian Premier League in 2008. Cricket administrator Amrit Mathur was in the thick of things throughout these changes in various capacities. In a new book titled Pitchside: My life in Indian Cricket (Westland Books, ₹470), which was launched in the city earlier this month, Mathur documents his experiences at the forefront of Indian cricket during the transformational period, offering an intimate perspective.

"Initially, I was doubtful whether people would be interested in knowing what I have to say. But I realised that because of the unique opportunities I've had – being present at so many iconic moments of Indian cricket – I had a lot of information that could offer a different perspective. So I decided to write it. It's a first-hand account, and it's authentic, because I was not only an observer, but also a participant," says Mathur, adding that much of the book is based upon the extensive notes he kept throughout his career. "It's the reason I was able to accurately write about minute things from all those tours I was in. If I'm saying that the team went out to dinner at a particular restaurant during a particular tour, it's because I kept a record of it," he adds.

As someone who witnessed cricket's transformation from just another sport to a commercial juggernaut that has become the de facto national sport of India, Mathur says it was inevitable. "The commercialisation is not limited to cricket. You can look at tennis, basketball or other sports, and they've all gone in a similar direction. But the level of commercialisation that cricket triggered is just amazing, largely because of the IPL," he says.

With Pitchside, Mathur provides a rare glimpse into the inner functioning of the Indian cricket team, relating interesting conversations between some of the biggest names in the sport at the time. From the 1992 Friendship Tour of South Africa till the inception of the IPL in 2008, Mathur reveals iconic and lesser known moments in this sport. While he stresses that the book covers almost every important aspect of his experiences, for the sake of brevity, he admits that a lot of things were left out.

"My editor jokingly said that we are publishing a book, not a telephone directory. So we had to ultimately drop a lot of things that one might consider important. There are many profiles of some of the most well known figures of Indian cricket in the book – Sachin [Tendulkar], [Rahul] Dravid, Sourav [Ganguly], Tiger (Mansoor Ali Khan Pataudi) – each of them are special in their own way and I'm writing it from my personal experiences," Mathur adds.

Given his wealth of experience in Indian cricket as well as the integral role he played in Delhi Capitals, Mathur says there is no magic potion for Royal Challengers Bangalore in order to win the coveted IPL trophy. "Nobody has a formula unfortunately. I was with Delhi Capitals for a long time. But neither have they won the trophy. I don't think anybody has the right answer," Mathur laughs.

(Writer, comedian)

There are enough people in the world to sing the praises of brands like Coca-Cola and Ford – companies that witnessed the world transition from horse carts to rockets. But I am the kind who pays tribute to dying brands – the ones that quietly leave the markets without much fanfare. Whether it is the gradual disappearance of brands like Ravalgaon and Nutrine, or the obsolescence of Chelpark ink pens, I'm fascinated by the life and death of brands.

Many would be surprised to know that Reynolds as a company actually began its operations in America. The '045' stands for 1945, the year the company took the States by storm. Gradually, the brand came to India and became an icon. Much like Bata, Reynolds might not have started in India, but it was a very Indian company. For decades, it was a part of the Indian education and job system. Other competitors were hard to use as they constantly leaked, leaving your pockets blue. There were expensive ones too – Parker, Pilot and Mitsubishi (I always wondered why a car company was making pens!). But these posh pens couldn't withstand the burden of the Indian education system. The Indian education system has unique writing needs that regular pens cannot fulfil. You have to write everyday, all the time. You scribble your way through class notes, homework, assignments and exams. Then there are letters, applications, diaries, and impositions - an innovative method of using writing as punishment.

Reynolds pens offered quality without burning a hole (or leaving a blue patch) in your pocket.

To cater to the rigid writing needs of the Indian education system, other brands had a pen or two. But Reynolds had a whole fleet. Primarily, there was the 045 Fine Carbure – the Sachin Tendulkar pen. The Reynolds 045 Fine Carbure ball pens never leaked, and the ink never smudged. The pen had other uses too. Being lightweight, it could be used as a 'rubber-band rocket propeller', and the cap could be used for a 'cap-fight'. Patriotic students erased the letters on the pen to make them read 'INDIA'. Real connoisseurs will know that they also came out with a range of purple, green, and brown versions. Then there was the Jetter pen that was mostly used by teachers. It came with a robust 'click-clack' sound that made you feel like a malnourished James Bond. The Trimax was the champion pen for exams. The pen might not have helped you score higher marks, but it certainly did help you finish the exam quickly and walk out like Stone Cold Steve Austin. Then there was the Racer Gel – the smoothest gel pen for both writing and doodling. It also came with trippy designs, just in case students brought magic mushrooms in their lunchboxes!

On days when I have nothing to do, I stroll into stationery shops like a drunken elephant. Pens in general have been witnessing a slow death. We have moved to a world of Word, Docs, and PDFs. I myself use an iPad for most of my writing, including this column. Upon enquiring, the shopkeeper informed me that Reynolds pens were no longer available in the market. The last few batches of the iconic Reynolds pen are available on Amazon, and I promptly ordered them. Kids of today will probably think of the actor Ryan when they read the word Reynolds. But for people my age, Reynolds will remain a childhood friend. When I see the Indian Test dressed in whites with a blue cap, they all look like the Reynolds 045 Fine Carbure ball pens from my childhood.

Director Raj B Shetty is a filmmaker who enjoys guiding his technicians throughout their journey. He has stuck with his music director Midhun Mukundan and cinematographer Praveen Shriyan since his first film. Just like Raj, who gained attention with unique plots in Ondhu Motteya Kathe and Garuda Gamana Vrishaba Vahana, his composer and DOP excelled in their own ways. Now, the trio joins hands again for Toby. In a conversation with CE, both the music director, Midhun Mukundan, and Praveen Shriyan discuss what sets Toby apart from their previous collaborations.

'TOBY POSED CHALLENGES DUE TO ITS GRAND NATURE AND SCALE'

Midhun Mukundan

A SHARADHAA

WHILE the songs of Garuda Gamana... are still being lauded by the audience, Midhun Mukundan is now ready for Toby. For starters, I asked him, what makes composing music for a Raj B Shetty film unique. "Raj makes everyone on his film team feel like it's their project. He gives us ownership without saying it. Surprisingly, for Toby, he didn't narrate the script to us, he just gave us the first cut. And, the first cut is final for Raj and DOP Praveen Shriyan. He asked me to work on the compositions based on the cut and explain the story through music. He trusts my creativity, and it leads to a unique work relationship. I prefer working alone when scoring, and even without constant communication with Raj, I understand his vision when I see the film." he says.

"The tune Maari ge Daari from the trailer, more or less captures the essence of Toby's music", reveals Midhun Mukundan who describes the music as gritty, intense, emotional and grand. and shifts between anger and softness. "We aimed for a massive scale with Toby, and this was a challenge. My focus is connecting the music to visuals and the story's context, in sync with Raj's direction and Shriyan's cinematography. I would even suggest them to listen to the music alone to gauge the vibe," explains Midhun, adding, "Toby posed challenges due to its grand nature and scale. The film's enormity and story made it heartwarming to see the result. I'm eager for audience reactions."

Praveen Shriyan

'TOBY'S VISUALS ARE INFUSED WITH A COMMERCIAL FLAIR'

RAJ B Shetty doesn't consider Praveen Shriyan as just a cinematographer. Their journey began as friends and they set out together in the cinema adventure. "He has never drawn a line between us as cinematographer and director," says the DOP, underscoring that this collaborative journey has breathed vivid life into his frames. "When it comes to envisioning scenes, we're in sync about 98% of the time, thinking alike and visualising together."

Like Ondhu Motteya Kathe and Garuda Gamana Vrishaba Vahana, Toby also has its backdrop in a coastal setting. Does this backdrop assist the cinematographer in capturing the essence of the coastal landscape? "Our visualisation naturally aligns with the story, adapting to the suitable locations," he explains.

How does the approach to cinematography shift with Toby compared to previous films? "My approach adapts to the very material of the film. Raj is the one who chooses, and the visuals are steered by the narrative. I prefer to immerse myself in the script rather than the characters. Raj's writing is incredibly precise, which facilitates the visualisation process," he shares.

Toby is a mass subject that gives scope for distinct visual dynamics. "It's a fusion of music integration and scene composition; the story plays a pivotal role in the visual narrative, while the characters take it to new heights," says Praveen Shriyan. He continues, "The script shapes the treatment of scenes. With Toby, we've leaned more towards commercial visual treatment, diverging slightly from a realistic approach. We've incorporated stylised techniques and extreme slow-motion, ushering in visual transformations. For the first time, we used a phantom camera for slow-motion, adding a commercial flair."

There's a particular moment that holds deep personal significance for Praveen. "The choice between distant and close-up shots hinges on the emotional weight of the scene. Selecting the right lens carries immense importance," he concludes.

The last dance

Film: Zindagi Tamasha

CINEMA WITHOUT BORDERS

In this weekly column, the writer introduces you to powerful cinema from across the world

NAMRATA JOSHI

SARMAD Khoosat's Pakistani film Zindagi Tamasha (Circus of Life) begins with a quote from the Persian poet Sana'I:

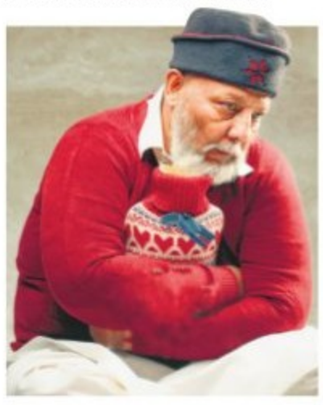
"To speak any word but your name (Muhammad, p.b.u.h.) Is error error;

To sing any artistic praise but for you Is shame shame."

It sets the context for the heart of the film—respect, dignity and autonomy of art forms beyond the limitations of religion, politics and ideologies. Ironically, the film has gone through similar suppression as the one faced by its protagonist, Rahat Khawaja (Arif Hassan). Like Khawaja, Khoosat also has had to face charges of blasphemy.

Zindagi Tamasha that premiered at the Busan International Film Festival and was Pakistan's submission for the 93rd Academy Awards, has been in a limbo for the longest, unable to find a release at home in the face of extra-constitutional censorship issues. Plans to release the film March 2022 was put on hold following widespread protests by the political party Tehreek-e-Labbaik Pakistan (TLP). What about the film could have warrants such reactions?

It is a straight and simple story of a pious, God-fearing Khawaja who writes and composes religious hymns and is much respected and loved in his community. He is a real estate agent and caregiver of his ailing wife Farkhanda (Samiya Mumtaz). Their daughter Sadaf (Eman Suleman) keeps visiting them off and on.



One day, at a family wedding, he ends up sharing his love for dance as a child and performs to a favourite film song—'Zindagi Tamasha Bani'—brought alive by his heartthrob Aasia on screen, in a 1974 film called Naukar Wohti Da. A recording of it gets uploaded online, goes viral and throws his life off gear as funny memes, nasty comments and social boycott follow.

The kind and gentle figure of Khawaja is quite revolutionary in how he redefines masculinity. He doesn't just dance with grace and elegance but takes care of all the domestic chores, including cooking a mean halwa which is relished by his neighbours. His wife is equally subversive despite being bed-ridden. She lays it down that after her death there should be no religious rituals, they needn't wait for her other daughters to fly home to bury her, she doesn't want her grave to be cemented nor any annual memorials to mark her passing. There is something lovely about the easy conversations between Khawaja and Farkhanda with actors Arif and Samiya sharing an easy camaraderie on screen.

Together the couple holds a mirror to the hypocrisies and conservatism of the world around them—their society, neighbourhood, family, even daughter Sadaf who points out to a colleague that her father doesn't sing na'at (poetry in praise of the Prophet) but recites it. To her, like the others, singing and dancing are forbidden. Worse, for a man to dance to a feminine song is enough for him to be ridiculed and considered khusra or eunuch. Even an educated Sadaf pejoratively calls her father a bhaand and mirasi (lowly performer and comedian). It's this aspect of the film that feels overdone. Every single person apart from the couple itself has objections about Khawaja's dance. There is almost no one to support him.

Khawaja is admirable in how he takes on the clergy when he is forced to make an apology video than talk straight from the heart. He indicts the cleric for using mosque money to renovate his own home and brings up the issue of bachchebaazi (molestation of kids) among priests. It is this controversial portrayal of the holy men of God that has been the primary reason for the film's many troubles.

But it is not as though the sensible Khawaja himself is beyond prejudices, especially when it comes to his reaction to homosexuality. Through the course of his own castigation, he must go through a change within himself. The film doesn't offer a resolution or closure. We only get to see a stoic man getting lonelier and more ardent in his defiance.

Beyond the human drama, Khoosat's camera is wonderful in its evocation of the sights and sounds of Lahore, particularly the old city during the festivities of Rabi-ul-Avval. The film also has a beautiful spiritual soundtrack which amalgamates the traditional melodies with modern rhythms, especially the contemporary version of the hymn Ajj Sikk Mitraan Di. The kind of music that can make you a believer, even if the film itself questions the belief system.

Shankar Guru and Dhananjay team up once again for Anna from Mexico

The director-actor duo who worked together in Badava Rascal, are coming up with an action-gangster drama

Shankar Guru and Dhananjay

CE FEATURES

SHANKAR Guru and Dhananjay, the director and actor duo who found success with Badava Rascal, are teaming up once again. Their previous film focused on a middle-class family's drama and friendship, this time, their new film titled Anna from Mexico marks Shankar Guru's sophomore project, and is being presented as an action-gangster drama with elements of comedy and emotions.

An official announcement of their collaboration was made at midnight on August 23rd, coinciding with Dhananjay's birthday. "I always wanted to present Dhananjay in a more mass-oriented look, and this subject fits the bill perfectly," says Shankar Guru, who is gearing up to start filming sometime this year.

Actors Nagabhusana and Poornachandra Mysuru, along with music director Vasuki Vaibhav who collaborated with Dhananjay in Badava Rascal, will reunite for this film. Produced by Satya Rayala under The Rayala Studios, the cinematography will be handled by SK Rao of Monsoon Raaga fame. Anna from Mexico is primarily set in a village in Karnataka, with crucial scenes taking place in Mexico.

Apart from this, Dhananjay is also involved in a project directed by Param, which is currently in production.

Dhananjay brings Gabru Satya to life in Uttarakaanda

CE FEATURES

Dhananjay's role in the upcoming Rohit Padaki film Uttarakaanda has been introduced through a teaser. In the glimpse, we see Dhananjay as the cunning Gabru Satya, who portrays shades of cleverness and shrewdness. The teaser hints at a subtle challenge to the truth-seeking police officers as they release him from the police station, and offers a glimpse into the character's essence. The teaser is enriched with robust dialogues delivered in the authentic North Karnataka dialect.

The teaser is set within the Police Station set in Vijayapura district, where Gabru Satya is subjected to intense questioning. The police inspector issues a firm caution, "You won't escape unscathed," and sends him away with a pointed reminder to stay vigilant. As Gabru Satya departs, he playfully remarks, Happy Birthday to me, while gifting the inspector a box of sweets.

Uttarakaanda marks the second collaboration between KRG Studios, director Rohit Padaki, and Dhananjay after Ratnan Prapancha. Additionally, the film produced by Karthik Gowda, and Yogi G Raj marks the return of actor Ramya as the female lead and features Diganth in a prominent role.
